MOSCOW LEADER'S QUIET WARNING TO JAPAN

DICTATORSHIP THREAT

BRITISH LEADERS PREPARE

IN DEFENCE OF DEMOCRACY

London, Nov. 6.

That the National Government has realised the urgent necessity for vigorous organisation to meet the challenge of those who would destroy democracy in Britain and substitute, under one name or another, dictatorship, was indicated to-day in speeches by the three principal Government leaders.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Baldwin and Sir John Simon, leaders of the three parties united in maintaining the National Government, were the guests at a luncheon given to-day by the National Labour Committee.

Each in turn spoke of the value to country of the National Government in overcoming the crisis which led to its formation and in tackling the difficulties which still had to be overcome.

The Premier said that the three of them were united in their objects. He believed that since the National Government was formed two years ago it had been the greatest steady force in the whole world.

They were united in movements for progress, national recovery and international peace, goodwill and co-operation.

MR. BALDWIN SPEECH.

Mr. Baldwin said that Britain was in an incomparably better position than she was two years ago but there was much still to be done, both nationally and internationally, which required that they should continue to maintain the closest collaboration.

Above all they had to make the people realise the real need for the preservation of democracy in Great Britain, and the National Government, he maintained, were the guardians of real social democracy.

Venturing one prophecy, the Conservative leader said that in whatever from the next election came unquestionably the great issue would be: "Are we going to trend in the path of constitutional democracy or are we going to scrap it?"

There could be only one answer to that question is all who believed in constitutional democracy stood together and fought out the issue.

CONTROVERSY DEAD.

Sir John Simon declared that the old controversies that divided the parties were dead because each party had made its contribution to what was now a common national possession.

"I was brought up in the strictest school of Liberalism," he said, "and I claim that the contribution of Liberalism in last generation was immense and beneficent. We fought for the extension of the Franchise, for complete religious liberty, for the extension of self-government in the Empire, for bringing the resources of the State to help of those who needed help most."

ESTABLISHED FABRIC.

"Now I say, in the presence of Mr. Baldwin, and with the greatest confidence, that these things, which were gained in the face of opposition, have become part of the established fabric of British policy and belong just as much to Conservatism as to any other British political creed."

"And in the same way, in the past generation, the immense contribution of enlightened conservatism which at the time was belittled and criticised from the Opposition quarter is to-day recognised and acknowledged with pride by us all."

Dutch Agreement With Americans

Amsterdam, Nov. 6.

The Dutch Colonial Petroleum Company announces an agreement relating to community of interests with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and Socony-Vacuum, for the sale of oil products in the Far Eastern and African markets.—Reuter.

BRITISH WAR DEBT STATEMENT

To Be Issued As White Paper To-day

London, Nov. 6.

The Cabinet which met this afternoon dealt mainly with the business before Parliament which re-assembles to-morrow. The House of Commons will devote most of its first day to a debate on Disarmament, during which a full statement will be made by the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon.

Before the debate begins, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain will give an account of the recent War Debt conversations in Washington, and a White Paper regarding them will be issued immediately afterwards. British Wireless.

INDIA REDEMPTION LOAN

IMMEDIATE ISSUE IN LONDON

London, Nov. 6.

The Treasury announces, as an exceptional measure, the immediate issue of a Government of India Loan for the purpose of replacing the India Six Per Cent. Bonds, 1933-34, in respect of which notice of redemption on December 15, 1933, has been given.—Reuter.

Sir John Simon said: "Both sides have now realised that in this complicated modern world there was no single and simple formula which would get them through their troubles. The past party controversies are dead," he said. "Let the dead bury their dead. There is great work to be done but it will only be done if we work together." Sir John pointed out that Britain was one of the few ancient countries in which Parliamentary institutions were active and successfully operating. The threat to these institutions, by whatever name it sought to disguise itself, was a threat of dictatorship. That was a danger from which the national combination of parties had to save Britain.—British Wireless.

POLICY OF PEACE

RED ARMY PREPARED FOR EMERGENCY

Moscow, Nov. 6.

While striving for peace with all, the Soviet is compelled to take defensive measures, declared M. Molotov, the President of the Council of Commissars to-day.

M. Molotov was addressing an important conference in Moscow in connexion with the sixteenth anniversary of the revolution. He declared emphatically that the Soviet's policy in the Far East was directed towards peaceful relations with her neighbours, but they must reckon with events in Manchuria and the fact that agreements concluded with the Soviet had been and were being violated.

JAPAN WARNED.

M. Molotov referred to the "ridiculous plans of some Japanese statesmen in reference to the seizure of Siberia and the near coast region" adding that the Soviet had strengthened the Red Army in the Far East and in the case of an attack would do everything to ensure that the Red Army obtained complete victory and full destruction of their adversary.—Reuter.

KINGS RETURN TO CAPITALS

BULGARIA TO JOIN LITTLE ENTENTE?

The improvement of relations between Bulgaria and Yugoslavia and the question of Bulgaria's eventually joining the Little Entente, formed the principal topics of the conversations last week between the sovereigns and statesmen of Bulgaria and Rumania at their meeting on the Danube, according to a Sofia dispatch.

The King and Queen of Bulgaria are expected to travel to Belgrade shortly to return King Alexander's visit to Euxinograd Castle.

WEAKNESS ON 'CHANGE

SHARP DECLINE IN KAFFIRS

London, Nov. 6.

The Stock Markets closed somewhat weak. Kaffirs declined sharply, Internationals were weak on American advices, Industrials were steady and British funds were lower, with War Loan 3½ per cent. at 100½.—British Wireless.

HONGKONG YACHT IN TYPHOON

OFFICER'S STORY OF ADVENTURE ON THE "TAI-MO-SHAN"

OFF AMERICAN COAST

Life and adventure on the Hongkong yacht "Tai-mo-shan," manned by five naval officers from the China Squadron and now making her way down the western coast of the United States, is breezily described in a letter received from Lieut. Commander Sherwood, R.N., one of the adventurers.

They expect to reach Panama by Christmas. Lt. Commander Sherwood's letter follows:

ENCOUNTER WITH WHALES.

Aboard the Yacht "Tai-Mo-Shan,"

October 6.

"At the moment of writing—6.30 a.m.—we had expected to be entering the 'Golden Gate,' the entrance into San Francisco. Actually we are in thick fog—no wind, and narrowly being missed by all of the busy traffic wending its way in and out of the harbour! When we left Japan we made our way direct from Northern Japan to the Aleutian Islands as we were not allowed to call in at the Kuriles. It was a long trip, as we experienced a lot of fog and light winds. We did not sight a ship for the whole eighteen days but saw many amount of whales! On the first occasion of sighting them George got frightfully excited not knowing what they were and we pulled his leg merrily. They came very close to the boat and one really began to wonder what would happen should they choose to come up under her."

TYPHOON WEATHERED.

"Our next adventure was a typhoon which passed over us when right up near Attu in the Aleutians. I can imagine you saying 'But weren't you frightened Marteen?' Well honestly we did rather wonder how the boat was going to stick it. If you remember we had always intended taking the boat out for some days on a trial trip from Hongkong and as time was getting late we had to leave without doing so. So this storm was really the first opportunity of trying her out. She was absolutely splendid. We just kept up a couple of sails to keep her head into the wind and sat there. She rode the waves perfectly and some of them were quite big."

THE SOLE INHABITANT.

"Attu was a funny little place with only 40 inhabitants when we arrived, a 50th arriving next day so we can scarcely be held responsible though the natives were going to christen it 'Tai-Mo-Shan.' There were huge hills all round with snow still on them and the air was like champagne. We did some sea fishing which was absurdly easy as no bait was necessary—merely a line with a weight and three hooks. We caught a lot of cod of about 24 lbs. and as many herrings as we wanted. I had read in a book about that part of the world that puffins had been used in a stew by the writer when shipwrecked on one of the islands. I got the others to shoot some as there were hundreds, and they brought me back half a dozen. I tried plucking them, having first put the d— things into a bucket of warm water as taught me at the Peninsular; but even then the feathers would not come out.

PTOMAINE!

A native then showed me their method of skinning them by turning them inside out. I found the breasts excellent and we had some good steaks out of them. I was not so successful, however, with some of the fish! We had been having a lot of the latter and I think they all wondered how I managed to dish them up nice and brown. (I had bought a large tin of breadcrumbs at Yokohama!) One day I used some which had been hanging over the side for some time and next day we were all doubled up, including the doctor, who administered a bomb to each of us and we recovered. That has been the one and only occasion on which Cooke could not have been blamed!"

RECALMED.

"After Attu we went up, into the Bering Sea which is only free of ice for two or three months of the year. It was jolly cold at night. It is the great breeding place for fur-seals; we saw several though we did not stop at any more of the Aleutian Islands until we reached Dutch Harbour, Alaska. This is only a small place but some American ships were in and so we were able to trim our boards, etc. I never saw such a mors as we had hanging down from our faces."

"From there we took three weeks to get to Victoria, being calmed for four days on end on one occasion but also doing 200 miles on four days running! The winds where we have been are known to blow frightfully unpredictably—like heck one day and none the next. We are now experiencing much steeper winds

THE FARM REVOLT

"NO-ONE CAN FORETELL THE END"

New York, Nov. 6.

A critical situation faces the Administration on the farm strike front, where the disposition to violence is growing.

The leader of the strike movement, Mr. Milo Reno, in a statement issued at Des Moines, declared:

"The betrayal of the farmers by President Roosevelt and Mr. Wallace leaves the farmers but one course; to strike with all the powers they possess."

"It will," he adds, "be a long and bitter struggle perhaps, and no-one can foretell the end."

"But President Roosevelt has deliberately broken his election pledge to the farmers and no amount of smiles or of sophistries can alter the situation."

TROOPS WANTED.

It is learned from Sioux City, that the City and County authorities have requested the assistance of National Guard troops, following the burning of a railway bridge three miles from Sioux City.

"A battle-royal in Congress is foreshadowed in an announcement by Governor Olson of Minnesota, who declared that the Governors of the Western States will unite to demand of Congress steps for Federal price-fixing, for crops restrictions and a general farm relief programme."

LEAVE DISAPPOINTED.

The Governors of the Northwest grain states, who came to Washington to demand the fixation of minimum prices on major farm products, departed in a most disappointed frame of mind to-day. President Roosevelt, on the advice of Mr. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, rejected their plan promising instead to expedite the present farm relief measures.

The farmers' strike, therefore, is continuing, following the leader, Milo Reno's warning of Nov. 4 that if the demands of the grain states were not met the farmers would throttle the nation's food supply system.

BLOODSHED ALREADY.

The opening skirmishes of the strike, which occurred yesterday, resulted in bloodshed when pickets, near Dakota City, attempting to hold up a lorry load of food-stuffs by driving their car across its path, collided with the heavy truck. The crash resulted in the smaller car catapulting into a group of picketers, and one was killed and several injured.

TIN CONSUMPTION IMPROVES

OFFICIAL FIGURES FOR YEAR

London, Nov. 6.

The world consumption of tin has been well maintained, according to the Haggis office of the International Tin Research Council.

World consumption during the year ended August 31 amounted to 118,300 tons, an increase of eighteen thousand as compared with the year ended December 31, 1932.

The United States consumed 16,000 tons more, Europe 1,000 tons more and Japan 180 tons—Reuter.

SLUMP IN U.S. DOLLAR

Lowest For Nearly Twenty Years

London, Nov. 6.

For the first time since 1914, the English pound was to-day worth more than twenty shillings on New York. The par quotation for the dollar is 4.86 2/3 to the pound. That figure was exceeded soon after the foreign exchange market opened to-day.—British Wireless.

TAMMANY TIGER CAGED?

LA GUARDIA FAVOURED FOR MAYORALTY

HEAVY BETTING.

New York, Nov. 6.

Wall Street is wagering heavily on what promises to be one of the noisiest and busiest municipal election for many years.

The candidates for the Mayoralty are Mr. La Guardia, famous Congress fighter, Mr. McKee, the independent candidate, and Mr. O'Brien, the present Mayor, who is the nominee of Tammany Hall.

The appearance in the field of both Mr. O'Brien and Mr. McKee has split the vote on which the Tammany candidate would normally be able to depend, with the result that Mr. La Guardia is a hot favourite for the Mayoralty. La Guardia is definitely anti-Tammany and he is an odds on favourite at one to three.

Two and a half to one is given against Tammany and the independent candidate, McKee, who is tacitly supported by the White House, and four to one against the present Mayor.

LA GUARDIAN.

A good deal of betting is being done, although the amounts are below those of previous years.

Excitement in intense throughout the city. The feature of the polling will be the presence of "fussioneers" composed of prize-fighters, professional athletes and young Society men, recruited by Mr. La Guardia to guard the polling station and to prevent intimidation.—Reuter.

WINDFALL FOR EXCHEQUER

ESTATE OF LORD CADOGAN

It is announced that the death of Earl Cadogan on October 4 has brought a windfall in death duties, as he left land valued at £2,000,000.

Despite his extensive landed estate, however, Lord Cadogan experienced a severe financial difficulties for many years before his death.

Deceased was the brother of the Minister-designate to China. He is succeeded by his son, Viscount Chelsea.—Reuter.

First Impressions.

When you meet people for the first time first impressions count for a great deal, so don't risk being handicapped at the start.

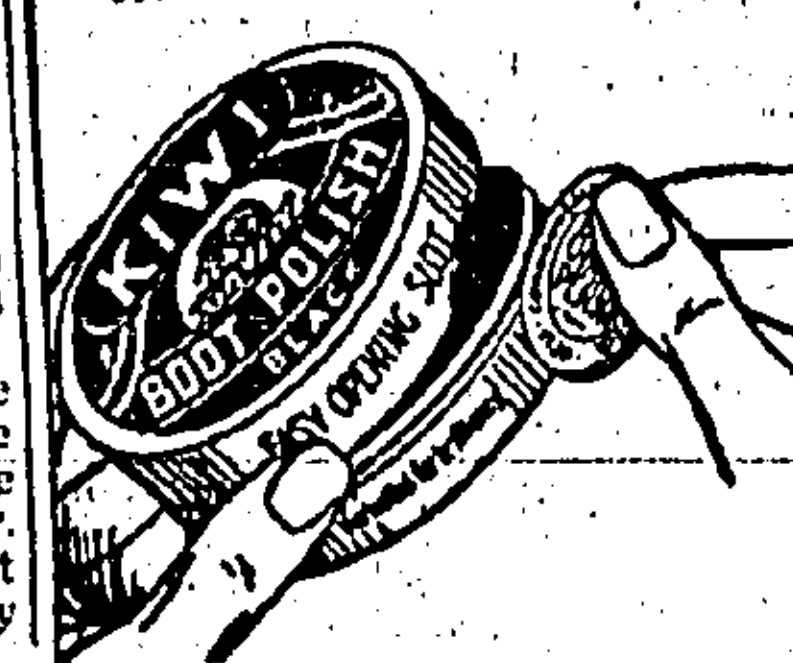

Few things make a worse impression on new acquaintances than a cold, clammy hand, lack of warmth and lustre in the eyes, a listless and indifferent manner. Your hands, your eyes, and your general attitude towards the world really indicate the condition of your health much more than the qualities of your character. Yet, unfortunately, people who do not know you properly are very likely to think otherwise.

The only way to overcome chilly, damp hands, to restore brightness to the eyes and cheeriness to the anaemic, enfeebled system is through the blood. Your blood is the source and sustainer of your life, and by tonic treatment by means of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills you can so increase, enrich, and revitalize it that the stream of fresh, pure, red, wholesome blood that is created will speedily carry new life, strength and energy to every organ, nerve and fibre throughout your whole system.

So why go on being held back by such physical deficiencies? You can obtain a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from your chemist to-day. But be sure to ask for Dr. Williams' and accept nothing else.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

CHAPTER XIX.

"Staircase Conversations." A church clock was tring half-past two when the little party got back to the Mermaid Hotel. The return journey from the wreck had been a silent one, with queer emotions and twisted thoughts for company, but as they entered the hotel lounge tongues were loosened again and decisions became imperative. "What do we do now?" asked Napoleon. "Go to bed or make a night of it?" "I suggest bed," answered Mr. Griddle. "Let well alone, and everything may come all right in the morning." He glanced at Leonard, and Leonard shrugged his shoulders. "You may be right," he said. "Anyway the majority of us can go to bed. There's no need for you to keep up." "There's no need for anybody to keep up," interposed the old man, "but if we decide to spend the whole night rushing about with the rest of you I'm merely suggesting that we can't do anything more to-night, and that bed is the best place for the lot of us. As I said before, everything may wear a different aspect by breakfast time." "Seems to me a dead man wears the same aspect whatever the time is," observed Napoleon, and stopped rather abruptly as he caught Leonard's warning eye. "Yes, of course, there is that," nodded Mr. Griddle. "The morning won't bring him to life again. All the same—" He stopped, as Beryl Haines rejoined them. She had slipped quietly away as soon as they had entered the lounge-hall. "Well?" asked Leonard, turning to her quickly. She shook her head. "He's not returned," she said. "It—it looks a bit rotten, doesn't it?" "If you mean that there's any need to connect the disappearance of your brother with the murdered man on the wreck—" began Mr. Griddle, but she interrupted him, with some warmth. "I don't mean anything of the sort, Mr. Griddle," she exclaimed. "That idea's too ridiculous even to consider. What I meant was that it was rotten to find him gone, when I'd hoped he'd be back again by now."

Her voice trembled slightly, and Jessica turned to her sympathetically. She was too close to her own trouble to be callous to Beryl's.

"He'll probably be back soon," Miss Haines said. "We can wait up and wait for him, if you like."

"Yes, we'll all sit up," exclaimed Mr. Griddle. "Perhaps Miss Fyne could produce some tea?"

But Leonard surprised the party by abruptly vetoing the idea. After all, he asked, what could they do? Guy Haines would return in his own good time, and they would all be wrecked if they stayed up any longer. Napoleon looked Leonard up, for no reason other than that he supposed he was intended to.

Mr. Fyne was quite ready for bed, and when two girls had caught Leonard's soft eye and had gathered something of its vague message, they agreed that retirement was the only sensible course.

On their way upstairs, however, Beryl managed to exchange a few whispered words with Leonard.

"What about Guy?" she asked. "I don't like leaving things as they are."

"Things are not going to be left as they are," Leonard replied. "The police will be notified inside an hour."

"But I thought you said—" "Yes, I know what I said. That was because I don't want everybody to know I'm going for the police."

"I see," murmured Beryl, glancing towards Mr. Griddle who was ahead of them. "You've told Miss Fyne?"

"No, I've not had a chance. And I don't think I shall. It might only worry her more."

"It would!" agreed Beryl, with rather surprising suddenness. He looked at her, uncomprehending, and she explained, "You seem quite capable of looking after yourself, Mr. Sefton, but it's not very pleasant to picture you wandering through murderous lanes while one's trying to get to sleep."

"You needn't worry."

"All right. I won't. But Miss Fyne might. So I think you're wise. There's one thing I want to ask your advice about, though. Should I wake my people up and tell them about Guy?"

"You know best, Miss Haines," responded Leonard. "If I were not going to the police, I should advise it, but as they could do nothing—and there may be a perfectly simple explanation in the morning—it seems rather a pity to turn a peaceful night into a restless one."

"Right again," nodded Beryl. "Just what I think. But—I wish we could do something. I say, are you going to the police station alone?"

"Why not take Nappy—Napoleon—with you? Do you know, I think he's a bit more useful than he looks."

"However he looks, he is useful," answered Leonard, smiling. "He's making Miss Fyne laugh at this moment. But I can't take him with me. He has got to be on duty here."

"What do you mean?" "That when a man is useful, he must sometimes forego his sleep. Napoleon Truelove will have to keep wide awake till I return, listening for noises."

Mr. Griddle's voice intruded from above. "Coming, Mr. Sefton?" he called. "We're neighbours, aren't we?"

"In minute, Mr. Griddle," he returned. "Saying good-night to Beryl, he sought Jessica, who was lingering at the point where her way separated from his."

"After all we've been through to-night it's surprising to find that there are still five hours left," he said. "Mind you sleep through all of them!"

"I'll do my best," she promised. "No more sitting by the window, and that sort of thing," he went on. "You oughtn't to have done it before, you know."

"Oh! And suppose I hadn't?"

"That's true," he admitted. "If you hadn't, Truelove and I would still be marooned on that deck out there." He glanced instinctively out of the passage window by which they stood, half-dreading that he might see the light again, and thereby find another mystery added to his perplexing store. But no light glewed. The hulk was a dead black smudge of shadow in the moonlight. "Yes, I can't say I'm sorry you sat by your window, Miss Fyne," he added. "Why did you do it?"

"If there are going to be any 'whys,' I'll ask one first," she challenged him. "Why did you go to the wreck?"

He thought for a moment, then smiled. "Could I let Mr. Truelove go all alone?" he asked.

"That story may have deceived others—"

"To be frank, I don't believe it has," he murmured. "Well, it didn't deceive me! I felt sure you'd go."

"Why?" "Instinct, perhaps. You've not told me, Mr. Sefton—who is the dead man on the wreck? Do you know?"

"The same poor fellow who Jim found at the foot of the gap," she stared at him. "It's true, Miss Fyne. Don't ask me to explain it. Everything will be cleared up presently, and our brains will be all the keener to do the solving if we get sleep while we may."

"Yes, I know. But—I'm so thoroughly bewildered. Why did you go to the ship?"

"Why did you think I'd go to the ship?"

"I've told you. An instinct. But perhaps it was a little more (Continued on Page 11.)

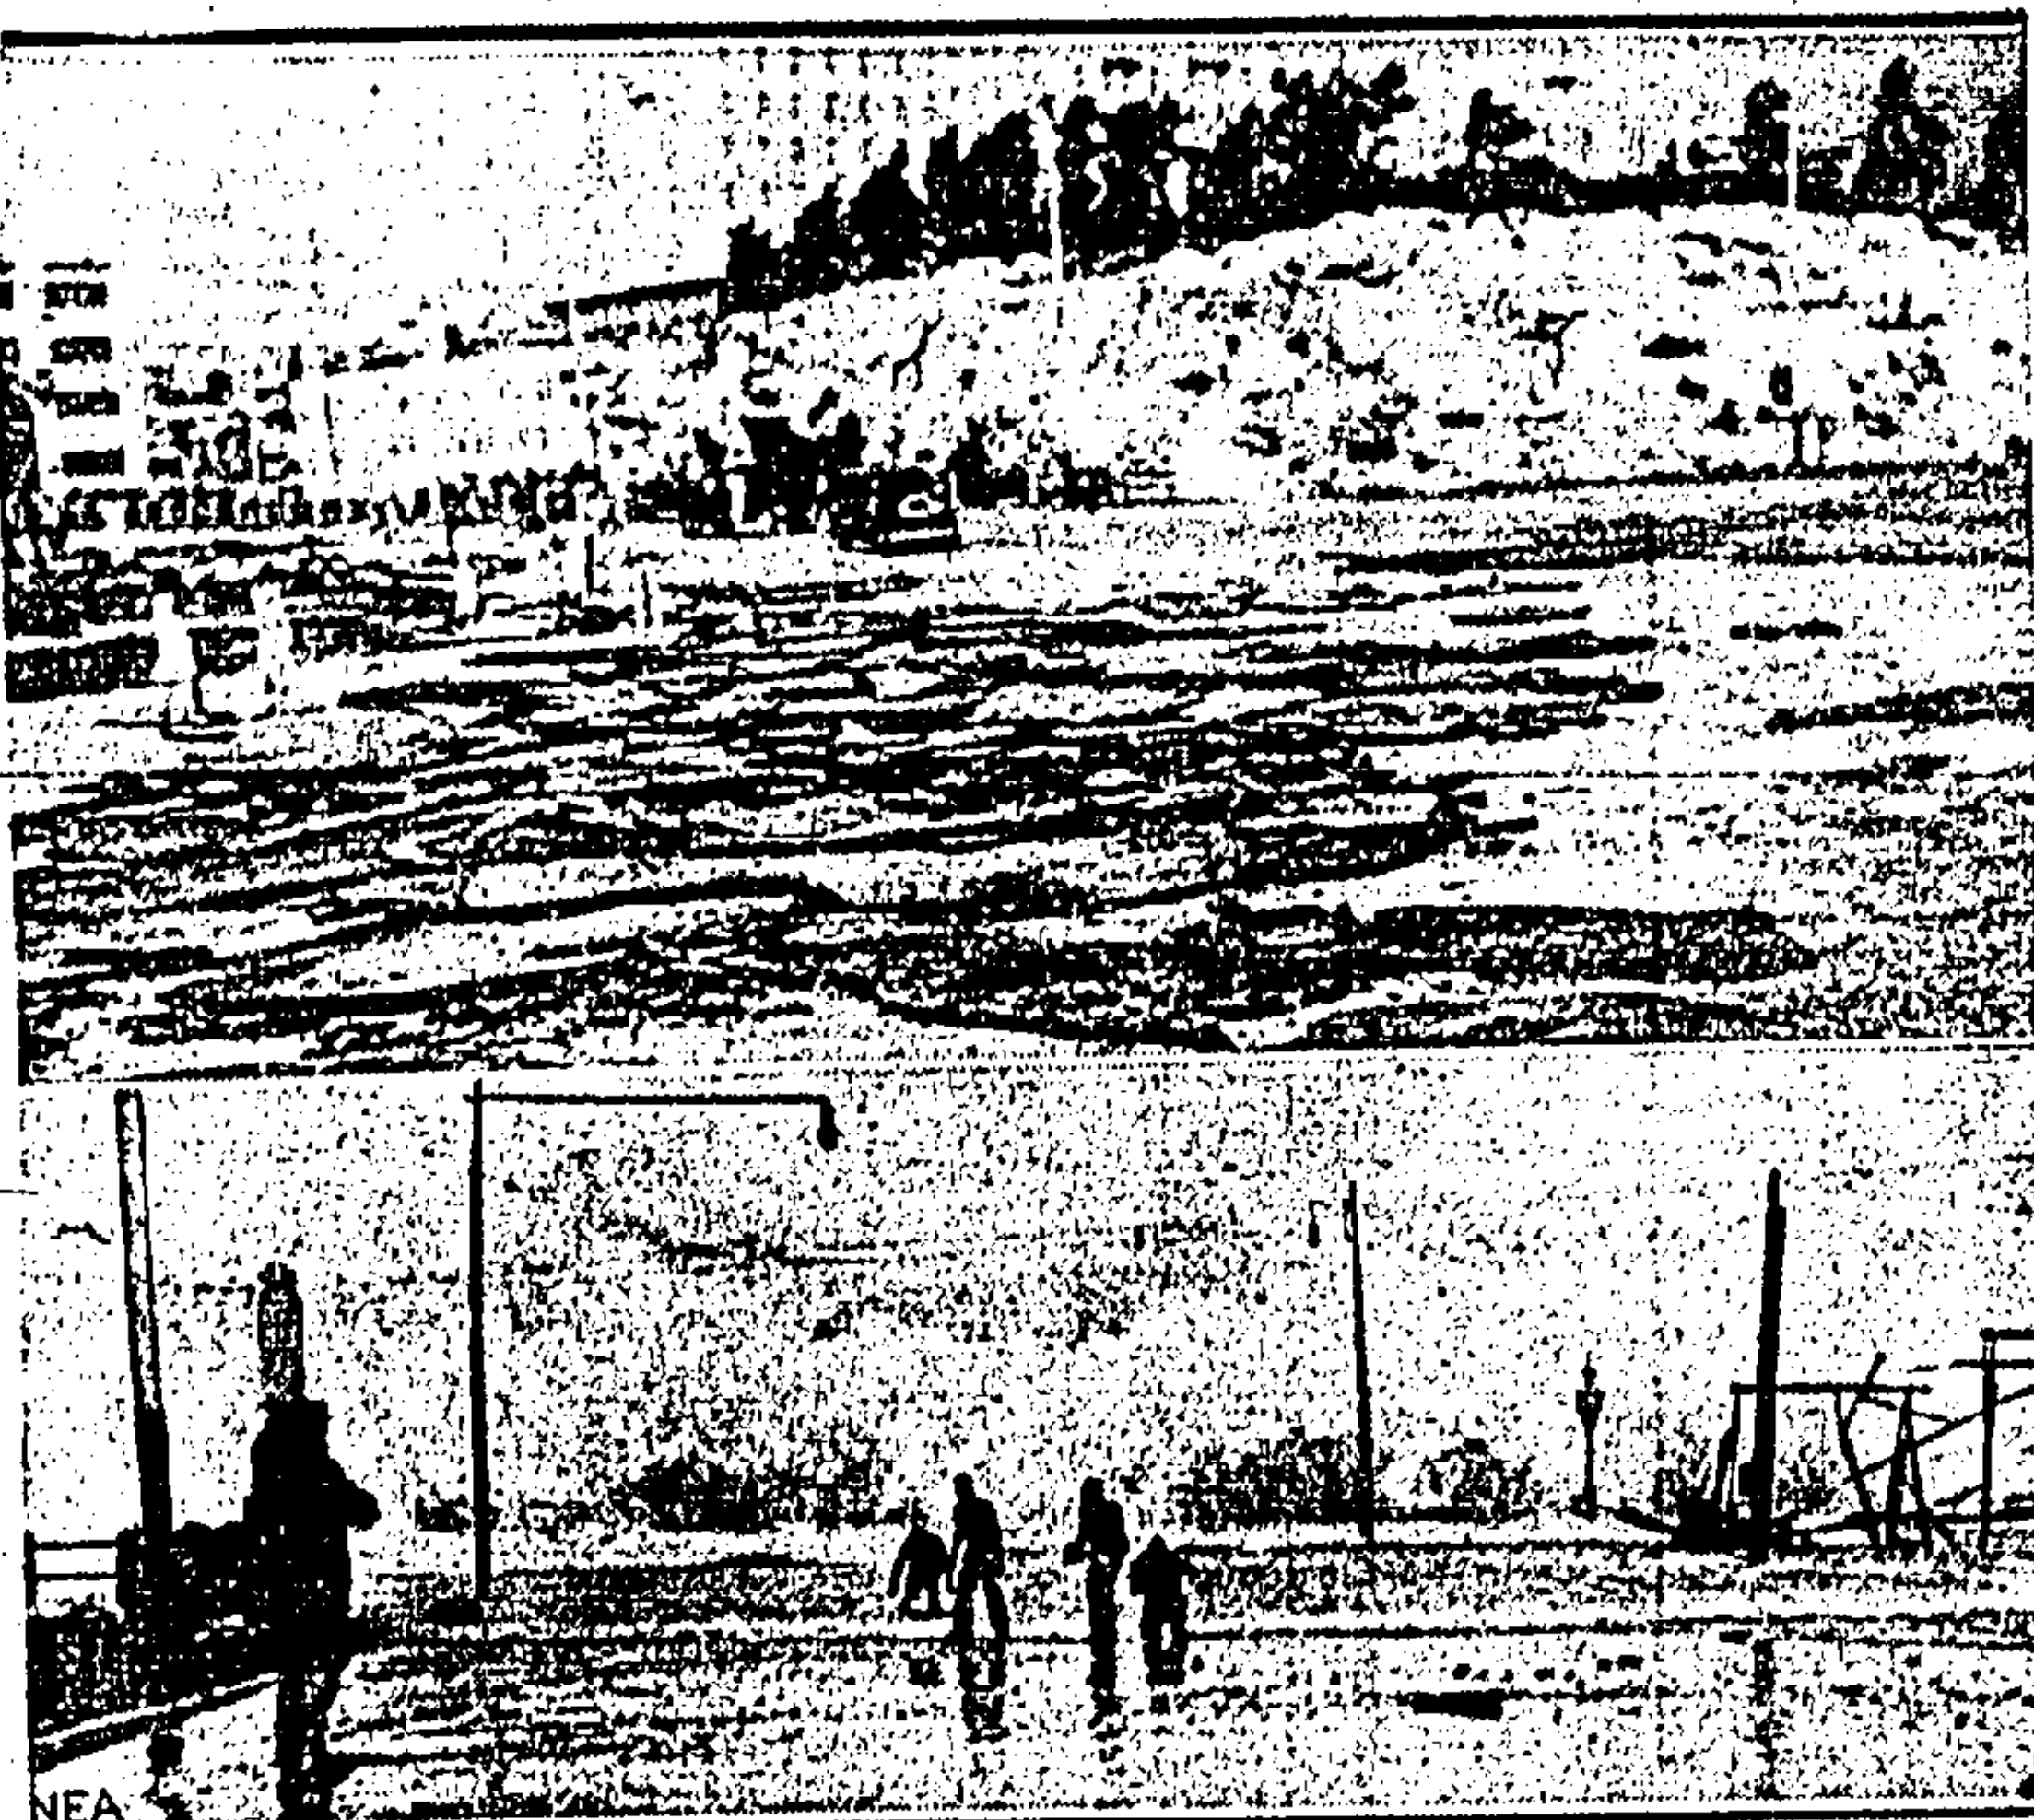

Thousands thronged the streets of Haifa when the body of King Faisal of Iraq was borne in state to the airport for transportation by special plane to Bagdad.

A delegation of striking Ford workers at Chester, Pa., who made an expedition to Edgewater, N.J., in an effort to induce Ford workers there to go on strike, are here pictured at Edgewater, cheering the decision of 500 local employees to walk out.

Beatrice Wong (left) and Dorothy Tom, two of the leading contenders in San Francisco's Chinatown in the race for queen of the Jade Festival, to benefit the Chinese Hospital. The Jade Festival was most colourful event held in Chinatown in 20 years, and Chinese all over the west participated.

Desert by revolts that overthrew one government and threatens another, Cuba also has been hard hit by another hurricane which caused 100 deaths, much property damage and made many homeless. Above, damage in downtown Havana, caused by water breaking over the seawall and flooding for several miles inland. Below, storm-driven water breaking over the seawall.

Her hold bulging with scientific equipment, the 59-year-old sealer The Bear of Oakland, supply ship of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's South Polar expedition, pulls out of fog-bound Boston harbour on the first leg of her long voyage to Little America. Commander of the ship is Captain R. A. F. English of the United States Navy, shown in inset.

HONGKONG TELEPHONE COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an Extraordinary General Meeting of the above Company will be held at the Board Room of the Company, Exchange Building, (Second floor), Des Voeux Road Central, Victoria, Hongkong, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November, 1933, at 12 Noon when the subjoined Resolutions will be proposed as Special Resolutions, viz:—

(1) That the present authorised Capital of the Company of $5,000,000 divided into 500,000 shares (hereinafter referred to as "old shares") of the nominal value of $10 each, the whole of which have been issued, be increased to $7,500,000 by the creation of 250,000 new shares of the nominal value of $10 each ranking as for dividend as hereinafter mentioned and in all other respects pari passu with the old shares constituting the Company's present issued capital.

(2) That the said 250,000 new shares be offered forthwith in the first instance (in the proportion of one new share for every complete number of two old shares held by them respectively) to the members of the Company who on the 28th day of November 1933, are registered in the Company's Share Register as the holders of the said 500,000 old shares at par and so that on acceptance of such offer the sum of $2.50 per share shall be due and payable leaving the balance due on each of such said new shares of $7.50 per share to be called up at such time or times as the Directors of the Company shall see fit to make Calls in respect thereof and so that such new shares so accepted as aforesaid shall rank for dividend as from First day of January, 1934.

And that such offer be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted by the member on behalf of himself or his nominee, will be deemed to be declined, and that the Directors be at liberty to fix such time or times and to extend such time or times to such date or dates, and upon such terms as they may think fit. And further that any of the said new 250,000 shares which shall not be taken by the Company's shareholders in manner aforesaid be disposed of in such manner at such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Directors shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

The Transfer Books of the Company will be closed from the 26th November 1933, to 28th November 1933, (both days inclusive) during which period no transfer of shares can be registered.

By Order of the Board,

"Cosas in make-up must mean color harmony," says Jean Harlow, "And, of course, Max Factor, who creates all the make-up used by stars and studios, has the perfect answer in powder, rouge and lipstick harmonized in color for each type."

1. "To harmonize with my complexion colorings... platinum blonde hair, very fair skin and blue eyes... Max Factor's Fish Powder is perfect. So soft and fine in texture, it blends naturally with the skin, creating a satin-smooth make-up that I know will cling for hours."

2. "Rouge should impart a lifelike, delicate flush of color, and I find Max Factor's Flame Rouge the correct color harmony for my type. Creamy-smooth in texture, it blends easily and clings perfectly. And here's a hint... put it on lightly, blend with fingertips to give an added softness of coloring."

3. "Lip make-up is so important... it must be moisture proof! It must be permanent in color! It must harmonize with your colorings, your powder and your rouge. So I use Max Factor's Super-Indelible Lipstick... Flame is my color harmony tone. I make up the upper lip first, press my lips together, and then fill in the natural contour."

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Joel Sayer's hilarious book, "Racketty Rex", has been transferred to the motion picture screen by the Fox studios. Described as a comedy satire of sporting racketeers who nurse in on big college football, the film comes to the King's Theatre on Wednesday. Victor McLaglen, heading the cast of comedians and comedienne, is said to have a far funnier role than those he had in "What Price Glory" and "The Cock-Eyed World". Green Nissen, platinum blonde beauty, is cast as the tenderloin sweetie of a sporting world racketeer who is bothered by a battling wife, a role played by Marjorie Beebe. Nell O'Day, musical comedy stage favourite, has a sprightly role as a newspaper girl with both beauty and brains.

The action of the picture takes place in Broadway night clubs, on the campuses and in the stadia of many colleges from the Yale Howl to Soldiers' Field and thence out to the gridlons of the Pacific Coast.

"Midnight Mary"
The melodramatic career of a New York tenement girl who comes perilously close to the electric chair is depicted in "Midnight Mary," a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture showing from Thursday at the Queen's Theatre. The picture was filmed from an original story by Anita Loos and features Loretta Young, Ricardo Cortez, Franchot Tone, Andy Devine and Una Merkel.

The story centres on Mary Martin, a young girl who grows up in adverse circumstances and is finally induced to join a group of crooks who progress rapidly from petty larceny to robberies on the grand scale. She falls in love with a wealthy young attorney and tries desperately to start a new life on an honest footing. The gangster who has dominated her youth threatens to kill the man she loves, and against her will, Mary Martin is forced back into the underworld.

The pivotal role is played by Loretta Young, one of the most popular of the screen's younger stars. Ricardo Cortez plays the gangster who forces her to become a crook, and the romantic phases of the plot are handled by Miss Young and Franchot Tone, the much talked about newcomer who received outstanding notices for his work opposite Joan Crawford in "Reckless We Live." Andy Devine and Una Merkel insure the picture of numerous comedy moments, and the group of supporting players include Frank Conroy, Warren Hymer, Ivan Simpson, Harold Huber, Sandy Roth, Martha Sleeper, Charles Grapewin, Halliwell Hobbes and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

"The Texas Bad Man"
Straight-shooting, 'hard-ridin' Tom Mix in his latest Universal romance of the West, "The Texas Bad Man" is now showing at the Central Theatre with villainous Fred Kohler, beautiful Lucille Powers, Willard Robertson and Tony also in the cast.

The story which pictures the Western star as a Texas Ranger in the disguise of a bold, bad bandit, is an original one by Jack Cunningham. It packs thrilling stage coach hold-ups, desperate chases, daring rescues and the amazing antics of Tom Mix and his ever-faithful steed, Tony, into a whirling series of exciting situations, and shows the adventurous Texan at his very best.

Franklyn Farnum, famed star of the silent films, will be seen in a role of the cowboy drama, as will Joseph Girard, Edward Le Saint, Buck Moulton and Capt. C. E. Anderson of the Rangers.

Edward Laemmle, who gave the screen: "The Drake Case," "Lascas of the Rio Grande" and several other dramatic hits was the director of the photoplay.

"Sweepings"
Some years ago the scoundrel son of a multi-millionaire became involved in a sordid love murder. The shock contributed greatly to his father's death.

A similar incident, with tragedy and pathos, has been incorporated into RKO-Radio film, "Sweepings" now screening at the King's Theatre, Lionel Barrymore enacts the father, and William Gargan, the dissolute son.

The production, directed by John Cromwell, which through several decades and pictures the rise of a great monument of commerce out of Chicago's great fire and the crisis it meets when the time comes for its heirs to show their mettle.

Besides Gargan, Barrymore is supported by Alan Dinehart, Nineta Sunderland, Gregory Ratoff, Gloria Stuart, George Meeker, Eric Linden, Lucien Littlefield, Helen Meek, Esther Muir and many other players.

FORGETTING TO REMEMBER

If a good memory is a perennial joy, the ability to forget nonessentials is an equal blessing. It is altogether too easy to abuse a good memory by allowing trivial and unimportant matters become too deeply embedded in one's recollections. Habits of memory can be directed to a considerable extent by training oneself to dwell upon worth-while items in daily living and constantly to drop the ordinary and the inharmonious. Some persons can call the roll of every day's menu in their late vacations; some can remember a score or two of obsolete telephone numbers; others can repeat dimensions of old bridges to the last inch; and others yet recall the cost of every item of clothing acquired during the last two years, statistics as to the pre-war salaries of government officials, and the ages of distinguished strangers almost without end. The Newgate calendar lists nothing of this sort as an offence against the public welfare, and the mental pigeon-holing of such devitalized information passes for harmless diversion in many most respectable circles. Since remembering and forgetting are but reverse sides of the same mental mirror, it is only necessary to turn the glass around to expose the memory to impressions of real value and to free it from encumbrances. The cultivation of what one's Aunt Victoria used to call "a good forgettery" is an art deserving more consideration by those seeking fuller living. This can best be done by putting first things first. It means giving the right of way to recollections of beauty, stimulating interests and kindness in the living card index of the human heart; throwing aside the pictures of low-tide mudflats for the recollection of the plunging surf at high water; discarding the memory of real or fancied slights in favour of helpful courtesies and friendly acts; seeking to understand fundamentals ahead of details; studying the trends of history before reaching broad conclusions built on isolated events; and recalling the noble harmonies of a great symphony in preference to the one false note from the wood winds in the midst of the tender andante that married an otherwise perfect afternoon. The unusual makes news and its impact upon the memory creates far-reaching impressions; but in this swiftly changing era many facts lose their importance in a week. Fortunately the art of judicious forgetting improves with practice, and, remarkably to say, the reward is a better memory for the things that count most in this amazingly interesting world.

NOTES OF THE DAY

JEWISH BOYCOTT

The adoption by British Jewry of a resolution declaring a boycott of German goods and services is chiefly important as a public gesture. It may lead to some intensification of the campaign, but the damage to Germany's trade can hardly be made more severe than has already been accomplished by the unofficial boycott carried out by the Jews since the anti-Semitic nature of Nazi policy revealed itself as more than a passing phase. Without publicity of any kind, the Jews in England have quietly and methodically caused millions of pounds worth of German orders to be cancelled and an effective organisation has been in existence for some considerable time past. Parallel organisations have been established in most countries on the Continent and powerful influences are also at work in the United States to see that every possible handicap is placed upon trade with Germany. Sunday's conference in London merely brought the activities of British Jewry into the open. There is nothing really new likely to follow upon the passing of the boycott resolution.

COUNTING THE COST

The weapon employed is one that few can have any real sympathy with, although it is the only one available to the Jewish leaders. One of the organisers has made it plain that the boycott is not directed against the German people, many of whom are suffering as severely as the Jews themselves under the Hitler regime, but against Nazi intolerance. Those acquainted with the Jews need no telling of their communal spirit, which means that the Jewish boycott of Germany will probably be more complete than any other people in the world could possibly make it. Financial considerations are not allowed to count as a factor when the rights and privileges of the race are challenged. Germany will be far more concerned in counting the cost.

RACIAL PRIDE

The Nazi glorification of the "Aryan race" is in all respects the most hurtful of its doctrines. Ethnological experts treat it as rather a joke and with such mockery as scientific men permit themselves invite the Nazi leaders to define an Aryan. Political leaders, treating of the realities, do not concern themselves with the fundamental weakness, but look askance at the attempt to puff up the pride of the German people and check Hitler's foreign policy at all points in self-defence. The Jews declare a boycott. In Germany, a new problem raises its head with the creation of a community which is neither "Aryan" nor Jew, Germans with a Jewish ancestor at some time or other since the days of Napoleon. They number seven or eight millions. In some respects, their plight is worse than that of the Jews themselves. A wise instinct compels them to organise, and if Hitler makes examples of their leaders, they will still be there, ever a problem, strong enough to be a perpetual nuisance if nothing more. It looks as though the Nazi Chancellor has bitten off more than he can chew.

THE BLUDGEON

Germany's chief trouble today is that where her instincts are sound enough, her methods, in the eyes of world opinion, are wrong. Practically everything that Herr Hitler and his lieutenants have said about Germany's place in the sun would be readily endorsed by statesmen elsewhere, British, French, American or Polish, or of most every other nationality. But they jib at the bludgeon.

NATIONAL DEFENCE

In Italy, Signor Mussolini wields greater power and even more ruthlessly in certain respects than Herr Hitler, but his methods are different and he escapes internal trouble and external criticism. The fact that the resignation of General Balbo, recent hero of an historic mass flight, could even be rumoured as likely to be tendered at the will of Il Duce without causing some internal rumbling and grumbling, is significant. In fact, the move Signor Mussolini contemplates, the combination of the War Office, Air Ministry and Navy Office in one ministry, will be applauded. A similar step in Britain would be regarded as distinct progress, if we could be sure of a Mussolini Secundus in the hand. It is almost absurd the way we go on now, with the Army and Navy chiefs fighting for their own to the last ditch—as they have been trained to do—with the very junior Air Force sadly neglected. A Ministry of National Defence, combining all three would rapidly sort them into proper places.

IS EARLY MARRIAGE WISE?

By PETER FORD

THE new divorce crop is a bumper one—and will produce the usual bumper crop of sweeping generalisations about marriage. A friend of mine figures in the undefended list. She dined with me the other night—a pretty blonde, a year off thirty. "The mistake I made," she confessed, "was to marry too young. Somebody ought to have stopped me." But father was delighted and mother thought Jack such a nice young man, and, of course, I had a crush on him—one of those calf-love crushes!

"I was seventeen!" "Now, I'm not the same person. All my ideas have changed. I didn't stop growing when I married. But Jack was twenty-five, and I supposed he had finished his developing process. Well, thank heavens there are no children!"

And she lit a cigarette—a pretty blonde, a year off thirty, and married for twelve years. I looked at her and thought that if she had waited another six or seven years, she would not now be taking up the time of the Divorce Court.

Marriage has not been reduced to an exact science. Probably it never will be, but the divorce lists would not be anything like so heavy as they are if men and women paid more serious attention to the age factor. And by age factor I do not necessarily mean age in terms of the calendar.

Some women are settled at twenty-five. Others are young, slim, adventurous, and ready for anything at forty. And it's the same with men, if not more so.

Theories about divorce are interesting; but the facts seem not to change. The marriages which most frequently hit the rocks are those contracted when the parties are really too young to know their own minds. The divorce statistics testify that the dangerous period of married life comes between the eighth and the tenth year. They also show that about one divorce in every eight occurs after twenty years of married life.

Twenty years! It sounds a long time. But if a man marries at twenty, he is only forty; and at forty a man can be astonishingly young. So can a woman—but not every woman.

On the occasion of his golden wedding the other day Sir Alfred James Rice-Oxley, the celebrated physician, pronounced himself a strong believer in early marriage.

William Morris Hughes married when he was twenty-two, and scraping a living as a Welsh immigrant of two years' standing in Australia. He rose to become Prime Minister of Australia and a world-famous personality. An early marriage helped him.

Lord Baden-Powell was fifty-five when he married. His wife is thirty years younger than "B.P." Yet that is one of the most ideally successful marriages I know.

Guttry, the great French actor, so shrewd and so worldly wise, told me not long ago that the astute man marries a girl at least ten years younger than himself. He considers thirty a good age for a man to go forth on life's greatest adventure. Not earlier than that.

HOW I PRODUCE A PLAY

By CHARLES B. COCHRAN.

I AM often asked how I find it possible to produce so many plays and yet maintain that close personal supervision which I give to every department of my productions.

Although I had the training of an actor and stage manager before I took to the business side of the theatre and actually produced a play under my own management and stage direction over thirty-five years ago, I do not generally rehearse the actors.

In my view the word "production" applies to more than that conduct of rehearsals to which the phrase is often applied, to the exclusion of all the other activities which result in giving the public a new theatrical entertainment.

GRADUAL DEVELOPMENT.

With musical plays and revues it is seldom a case of an author or composer bringing me a completed play or score for my consideration. Having conceived the idea of the entertainment I want to build up, I look round and select the author or authors and the composer or composers who, I feel, can give me what I want. The same method applies in commissioning an adaptation from a foreign language or from a book.

The title and subject are chosen and the development worked out usually as the result of conferences, stage by stage. As the play is written the music is composed and submitted for my approval.

Various suggestions are made to me with regard to the casting; but I usually start with a pretty clear idea of the principals I want, and all the actors and chorus have to be personally seen and approved by me finally.

The visual side of entertainment has a strong appeal to me, and I take great care in my selection of designers for the scenes and costumes. I suggest to them what I require and they go away, to return later with their detailed development of these general ideas.

FITTING PIECES TOGETHER.

A further stage is reached when a start is made at putting all these pieces together. Often with a big musical show there are several rehearsals going on in different places simultaneously. I move from one to the other, making notes and comments on all points that occur to me, and co-ordinating the work of the different stage departments—the musical director, the ballet-mistress, the wardrobe, and so on, as they work towards the completed production.

Often I suggest cuts or additions or the rewriting of parts of the script or score which appear to me necessary before or during the rehearsals.

In producing a new straight play for the first time I make up my mind who is the most suitable director to handle this particular play.

With my organisation, it is possible to produce a number of plays at almost the same time. The chief requisites of the producing manager are imagination, courage, and ability to choose the right lieutenants to whom he can delegate a mass of detail, to keep track of what they are all doing, and to help them with encouragement and advice.

A difficulty with which I am sometimes faced is that of laying one's hands on the right stage director or the right cast just when I want them for a particular production.

A majority of stage directors are found to be particularly good with one type of play and not with another. Reinhardt, who is equally

The Very Idea!

IT IS RUMOURED.

BY ED. KELLY,
SCANDALMONGER

STRONG rumours have been current to the effect that Mr. J. S. Landolt won about $280,000 in the China National State Lottery. These rumours have been denied.

Strong rumours have also been current that Mr. Edward Kelly will pay his Hotel bill account before the end of the year. Interviewed yesterday, Mr. Kelly emphatically denied the rumours, which he characterised as scurrilous slander spread by unthinking people who were trying to besmirch his name.

For some time past rumours have been current that the price of admission to St. Andrew's Ball will be reduced by fifty cents this year. Although these rumours have not been officially denied, the Committee has decided to charge the usual prices.

Strong rumours were current in the Colony yesterday that a typhoon was hovering around. These rumours have since been denied. Several persons were under the mistaken impression that the hoisting of a typhoon signal meant that a typhoon might occur.

Referring to the rumours current in Hongkong that a well-known Scotsman found a ten cent piece last week Robert Whirter when interviewed this morning wanted to know who he was.

WINTRY SPORT

It's great to think, these cooler days, of springing out of bed, of springing through the morning haze, and then (your garments shed) of diving in the salty sea till glowing in each vein, and you recall you've still to shave, and sprint for home again. It's great, we say, to think of this—all this—when snug in bed, refusing to forsake its bliss for what the ice-brooks said than coddling ways were better far. Though bedtime hours must end, we wonder if these icebergs are the fools that they pretend!

VICTORIA GREETING.

"We had a wonderful reception at Victoria and had invitations every day; the Canadian Navy put us up. Francis and Salt went up to Banff in the Rockies, Ryder to Vancouver, but the Doctor and myself stayed at Victoria where I thoroughly enjoyed myself. Goodness knows what awaits us when the fog clears as we are only just outside San Francisco and they made an awful fuss in the Canadian papers so I don't know what the Yank ones are like."

"I expect you must wonder how the cooking is going and whether we just scrape stuff out of tins or even whether the cook has not ended up overboard by now. We do not think I am boasting when I tell you that I was quite embarrassed at Victoria by the glowing accounts of the good cooking that the remainder told the people ashore."

COOKING ADVENTURES.

"I found that after a bit I could cook simple meals fairly well though it took me some time to get used to the motion especially as I suffer from sea-sickness. Now I can cook all sorts of puddings, pastries, etc., in addition to fish meals, stews, etc. Mark you, I do not think I would have remained sane had I kept on with the original stoves. Trying to pump them up with the boat at an angle, and skidding about on a deck slimy with a mixture of paraffin, seawater and cooking fat, would in the end have got me down. They leaked steadily and no soldier would stick it for long. The oven was never satisfactory. Now I am absolutely fine. I came across a gas at Victoria which is used a lot over here called "Rock Gas." No smell, dirt and a better heat than the Primus. We don't even have to have a funnel up to the deck. I have a simple two-burner range and portable oven which I put over one of the burners for baking. Everything works beautifully merely by turning on a tap. I can cook everything in half the time."

A DAY'S MENU.

"Here is our actual menu for yesterday which is not too bad is it?—Breakfast.—Porridge, scrambled eggs and beans, coffee, fresh bread. Lunch.—Cold lobster, salad with lettuce and tomatoes, and German sausages. Supper (hot).—Chicken, bacon, pork sausages, bread sauce, mashed potatoes, kidney beans (fresh), followed by one large and one small apple tart and custard, and washes down by a brew of coffee!"

"I think the others are pleased with the results. They are certainly getting quite fat."

"Here is a rough programme—about four days stay at San Francisco, San Pedro, San Diego, Magdalena Bay (Mexico), and then we have a long trip down to the Galapagos Islands. I wish I knew how to kill a turtle as there are lots there but you can think of me running about the islands holding out a lump of cheese, with a knife in the other ready to lop their heads off! Were you pulling my leg or not? "

"We hope to arrive Panama about Christmas."

FRANCO-BRAZIL TARIFF WARINSTALMENT OF LOAN DELAYED

The Brazilian Government has instructed the London bankers, Messrs. Rothschild & Son, according to cables received from Rio de Janeiro, to delay payment to France of the instalment repayment of Brazil's loan. It is hoped that this drastic action will induce the French Government to moderate its action in interfering with the existing commercial relations of the two countries. It is also possible, the Brazil authorities believe, that the tariff concessions on both sides may lead to an agreement.

INDIA AND JAPAN
IN AGREEMENT.CONFIRMATION BY TOKYO AWAITED

New Delhi, Nov. 6. The official delegations of the Indian and Japanese cotton interests met again to-day, Mr. Savada, having recovered from his indisposition, attending the conference. It is understood that the outlines of an Indo-Japanese agreement have been settled, subject only to confirmation from Tokyo which is eagerly awaited.

It is understood that the cotton aspect of the agreement should be ready for ratification on Nov. 10, and the remainder of the subjects of discussion will be settled before Nov. 15.

It is expected that provision will be made to give effect to the agreement as from Nov. 10, in which event the Indian Government will bring before the Assembly shortly a bill making the implementation of the pact possible.

It seems that to-day's talks were concerned mainly with the objection of the Japanese cotton interests to the rigid classification of goods which Japan fears may prevent taking advantage of the full quota offered. The Japanese also wish a reduction of the quota in respect of Japanese purchases of Indian cotton.

Vital Discussions.

The Indian Government has explained the extent to which it can accommodate the Japanese view point and the Japanese side apparently has realised that the agreement reached must be based largely upon to-day's talks.

Thus the terms India offers have been communicated to Tokyo for formal authority for entering into an agreement with the Indian Government.

A tariff of 50 per cent. ad valorem on most cotton textiles and specific duties on the remainder, with Imperial preference, are the main points of interest to British cotton interests. Thus, Lancashire will have a 50 per cent. margin of preference if the plans work out as contemplated.—Reuter.

ITALY DISTURBED.

Abyssinian Land For Japanese Cotton.

Rome, Nov. 6. Italian opinion is much disturbed by the intention of Abyssinia to concede to Japan 1,000 acres for cotton cultivation and probably further land for other enterprises. The Italians anticipate that this is probably the thin end of the wedge of a colonisation scheme, by which Abyssinia will become an outlet for Japanese surplus population.

Semi-official newspaper comment is to the effect that Abyssinia is disinclined to develop relations with Italy and adds that Italy may invoke the aid of Great Britain and France, under an agreement of 1906, which promised concerted action in safeguarding these nations' respective interests.—Reuter.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

A Roman Bird
SanctuaryCHILDREN FREE
1,000 SONGSTERS

Rome, Oct. 5. The trees and foliage of the Borghese Gardens—the Hyde Park of Rome—to-day sheltered a thousand birds which have been liberated in the name of St. Francis of Assisi. The birds were set free yesterday on the feast day of the Saint, and the gardens were officially declared a bird sanctuary.

The event was carried out with picturesque ceremony. Two companies of Black Shirt boys and girls units were paraded in the Gardens in a hollow square around hundreds of cages containing birds which had been confiscated from poachers who had trapped them to sell them as song birds or as decoys.

After a short lecture on bird lore, followed by the recitation of St. Francis's "In praise of Birds" from his "Hymn to Creation," the children, one by one, stepped forward to open the doors of the assembled cages.

Gradually the surrounding trees became alive with the birds preening their feathers and fluttering about in their new-found freedom.

Although of various species, the birds all kept together in a twittering congregation for nearly half an hour, and then, as with common consent, they took wing together and flew off to all parts of the great park. Artificial nests have been erected at many points.

Drastic control over the snaring, marketing, and treatment of birds all over Italy is now in force, and bird sanctuaries similar to those of Capri and the Borghese Gardens are to be established along the migratory route of the Peninsula.

HOW I PRODUCE A PLAY

at home with Greek tragedy or Offenbach, Shakespeare or Schiller, or a modern intimate comedy, is one of the few exceptions.

The greatest of them have their particular point of view stamped upon all they do. The best results are obtained by varying one's selection of director as the needs of the production require rather than by clinging to one.

JUDGMENT ALL-IMPORTANT.

One hears a good deal about the over-crowding of the profession, but the greatest difficulty besetting a manager still is to find the right cast when he wants it. I have kept plays for years because I have not been able to cast them as I wanted when I wanted.

I have mentioned "courage" as one of the chief assets of the manager-producer. This means a willingness to listen to outside suggestions but a fearless reliance in the end on one's own judgment in the choice of material and personnel, and, if necessary, in scrapping them. It sometimes takes considerable courage to scrap ruthlessly an expensive scene or set of costumes which is discovered during the penultimate rehearsals to be an embarrassment, and it needs courage tempered with tact and sympathy to amend an error of casting after rehearsals have shown that any particular members of the company is unsuited.

The producer, as I envisage the term, must also be actively conversant with the business side. He may, in this department, again delegate the detailed discussions to his business manager, but everything which involves expenditure must be under his hat. He must budget carefully under every head and pass all estimates for supplies.

"Production" can only be a one-man job.

SMART FOOTBALL

Over 4,000 persons saw the Lincolns football team of Hongkong win the friendly match from the Intang Military Academy cadets at the East Parade Grounds on Sunday.

The ball travelled swiftly from one end of the field to the other during the first half of the match without either side scoring.

Shortly after the beginning of the second half, the visitors scored a goal. The local team tried hard to even the score but failed to break through the defence of the Lincolns, with several fruitless long shots.

Towards the end of the game, one of the cadets' fullbacks was injured and the cadets had to continue with ten men. They resorted to the defensive, and only the splendid work of the goal-keeper prevented more goals from being scored by the visitors.

When the match ended, the score stood 1-0 in favour of the Lincoln Regiment.

Among the spectators were Gen. Tao Yick-him, vice president of the Intang Military Academy, Col. Liang Hui-kwai, Counsellor to the Military Headquarters, Col. Art Lin, Chief of staff to the Canton Air Force. Members of the British consulate in Shamen were also present.

FREE FROM RISK.

The Londoner's leads carried so little behind them that McAvoy treated them almost with levity. Never can a boxer have found attacking so free from risk as did McAvoy, and he was always scoring at a steady pace.

His best blow was a right to the short ribs. His left he used chiefly to get his distance, except when he cornered Sexton, which was often. Then he let him have it with a vengeance.

But there was far too much holding and too much mere sparing for the fight to be a good one.

Still, it needs two to make a battle, and Sexton was never able to make up his mind to turn aggressor.

I was terribly disappointed in him. So was everyone else. It is sad to see a man so afflicted by nerves that he cannot give of his best.—Geoffrey Simpson.

KING SOL GREET'S INTERPORT CRICKETERS

MATCH TO START—

WICKET VERY HEAVY

OPENING DELAYED
UNTIL 1.15 P.M.

"We'll Do Out Best"—
Owen-Hughes

A shy sun, peeping through the clouds, greeted the Interport cricketers this morning, and made possible a decision to start the match between Malaya and Hongkong at 1.15 this afternoon.

Although it is rapidly drying, the wicket is extremely heavy, and an inspection this morning by Owen-Hughes and R. N. Hamilton caused them to suspend opening of play until 1.15.

By that time the wicket will be in a good enough condition to raise the curtain on the 1933 Triangular Interport series. If the sun continues, the pitch is expected to become rather difficult this afternoon, and whoever wins the toss will have to exercise considerable amount of thought in deciding whether to bat or field first.

"WE'LL DO OUR BEST." Interviewed this morning, Owen-Hughes, the Hongkong captain was asked what he thought of the local team's chances of winning. He replied: "I honestly don't know. We'll do our best. That's all I can tell you."

R. N. Hamilton, the Malayan skipper preferred to not express any opinion in this direction.

Played Tennis
In His Sleep

CRAWFORD ON HIS
U.S. BREAKDOWN

Sydney, Oct. 10.—J. H. Crawford, the Wimbledon, Australian, and French lawn tennis champion, arriving here to-day, said that his breakdown in America (where he was defeated 3-6, 13-11, 6-4, 6-6, 1-8 by F. J. Perry last month in the final round of the American National Lawn Tennis Championship at Forest Hills, New York) was due to nervous strain after a long tour. He was unable to rest properly. "As soon as I dozed off my arms began to move backwards and forwards as in tennis," he said. "I played tennis in my sleep, and immediately woke."

"I did not get more than an hour's sleep on any night. On the day I broke up after the third set I have not the slightest recollection of the remainder two sets I played."

Crawford added that he was afterwards compelled to take drugs to induce sleep. He expects to be quite fit for the matches with the Englishmen who are to play in the Australian championships early next year, though by doctor's orders he must temporarily confine himself to doubles.

KWANTI RACE MEETINGS

STATEMENT BY OFFICIALS

OPEN TO PUBLIC

An official statement regarding the Kwanti race meetings for this winter has been made by the Secretaries of the Fanling Race and Hunt Club in the following letter.

(To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.)
Sir,—There appears to be some uncertainty in the minds of the public concerning the activities of the Fanling Race and Hunt Club for the coming season. Because of this we should be obliged if you will publish this letter giving a statement of the following facts:
(a) Race Meetings open to the general public will be conducted at Kwanti and the following dates have been selected:
1933: December 31,
1934: January 28, February 18, March 11, April 8.
The Pari Mutual and Cash Sweepstake will be run as in the past.
(b) The "St. John's Cup" Cash Sweepstake for which tickets are now being sold will be held as planned and is to be decided for by a race run for the "St. John's Cup" on December 31.
(c) The Hunters' Arms will be in use exactly as in former years.

HARCOURT TENNIS

CHAMPIONSHIP IN SHANGHAI

Successes for Khoo,
Lum and Cheng

The Harcourt Tennis Championship of Shanghai started on the Cercle Sportif Courts last week with 17 matches in the various sections being decided.

Only two of the seven matches played in the Men's Singles championship went to three sets. Gordon Lum, H. Collaco, C. C. Squires and C. C. Cheng had no difficulty in entering the second round in two straight sets. Lt. Rixey triumphed over J. Loomis in three sets, as did Kirkeby over Brunner.

Only one match was played in the Men's Doubles series with Khoo Hoo-hye partnered by D. Cheng entering the next round by an easy victory over Lt. Rixey and Suit. The latter couple were handicapped due to an injury to Suit.

FAVOURITES WIN.
In the Mixed Doubles two matches were played and two were forfeited. The favoured couples entering the second round—Mrs. Fischer partnered by A. G. Meise, Miss T. Collaco and H. Collaco, Mme. Mendmore and Khoo as well as Mrs. Dvorjetz partnered by Benavitch.

Two walk-overs were given in the Women's Singles—Mrs. Rodger and Mrs. Service forfeiting to Mrs. Lum and Mrs. Cate respectively. Two walk-overs were also given in the Women's Doubles series.

MEN'S SINGLES.
Gordon Lum beat D. Cheng, 6-1, 6-2.

Mrs. Cate w.o. Mrs. Service.
WOMEN'S DOUBLES.
Mrs. Cate and Mrs. Ovidin w.o. Miss Hite and Miss Smack.
Miss T. Collaco and Mme. Mendmore w.o. Miss Loh and Miss Drisc.

WIGHTMAN CUP PLAYERS MAY VISIT HONGKONG

MISS ROUND &
MISS HEELEY

NOW SAID TO BE IN JAPAN

AUSTRALIA AS DESTINATION

Said to have Australia as their destination, Miss Dorothy Round and Miss Mary Heeley, two members of the British Wightman Cup team are reported to be in Japan, where they will in all probability play exhibition matches.

Although it has not yet been confirmed, it is more than likely that the two players will pass through Hongkong some time this month, in which case it can be safely believed that the Lawn Tennis Association will make every effort to arrange for their appearance here.

So far as is known the L.T.A. has not yet taken any steps in this direction.

AMERICAN SUCCESSES.

Miss Round and Miss Heeley enjoyed several successes in America this year, Miss Round winning the Pacific South-West Championship, by beating Miss Alice Marble in the final 6-2, 6-2. The two girls also reached the final of the women's doubles, but were defeated by Miss Ryan and Miss Marble in straight sets, whilst Miss Round figured in the mixed doubles final with Perry, but was beaten by Ellsworth Vines and Miss Ryan.

HOCKEY TEAMS

DRAMATIC KNOCK OUT BLOW

HOW JOCK McAVOY RETAINED MIDDLEWEIGHT
TITLE AND LONSDALE BELT

A knock-out, dramatic in its suddenness and totally unexpected, enabled Jock McAvoy, the middleweight champion of Rochdale, to keep his title and Lonsdale Belt at Belle Vue, Manchester, last month.

He brought his challenger, Archie Sexton, of London, sprawling face downwards in the tenth round with an upper-cut which threatened to tear his head from his shoulders, yet for nine rounds the champion, though he was always winning the fight, had not placed a single punch on Sexton which really troubled him.

It was a remarkable finish to a contest which was one of the poorest and dullest ever given a championship label. After a few rounds the crowd were shouting derisively at the efforts of the two men, and there was also considerable booing. But McAvoy's storming finish had everyone on his feet ready to cheer and forgive.

CHAMPION SHAKEN.

At the start of the tenth round Sexton, for the first time in the battle, showed a trace of fire. He stopped from his corner, shot a left-hand feint towards the head, and followed immediately with a crashing right on McAvoy's jaw. The champion, taken completely unawares, was visibly shaken, but the punch had exactly the opposite effect to that intended. It roused McAvoy as nothing had done previously.

Stung to action, he walked into his challenger, hit him on the chin with an upper-cut that must have rattled his teeth, and then proceeded to pound him all over the ring.

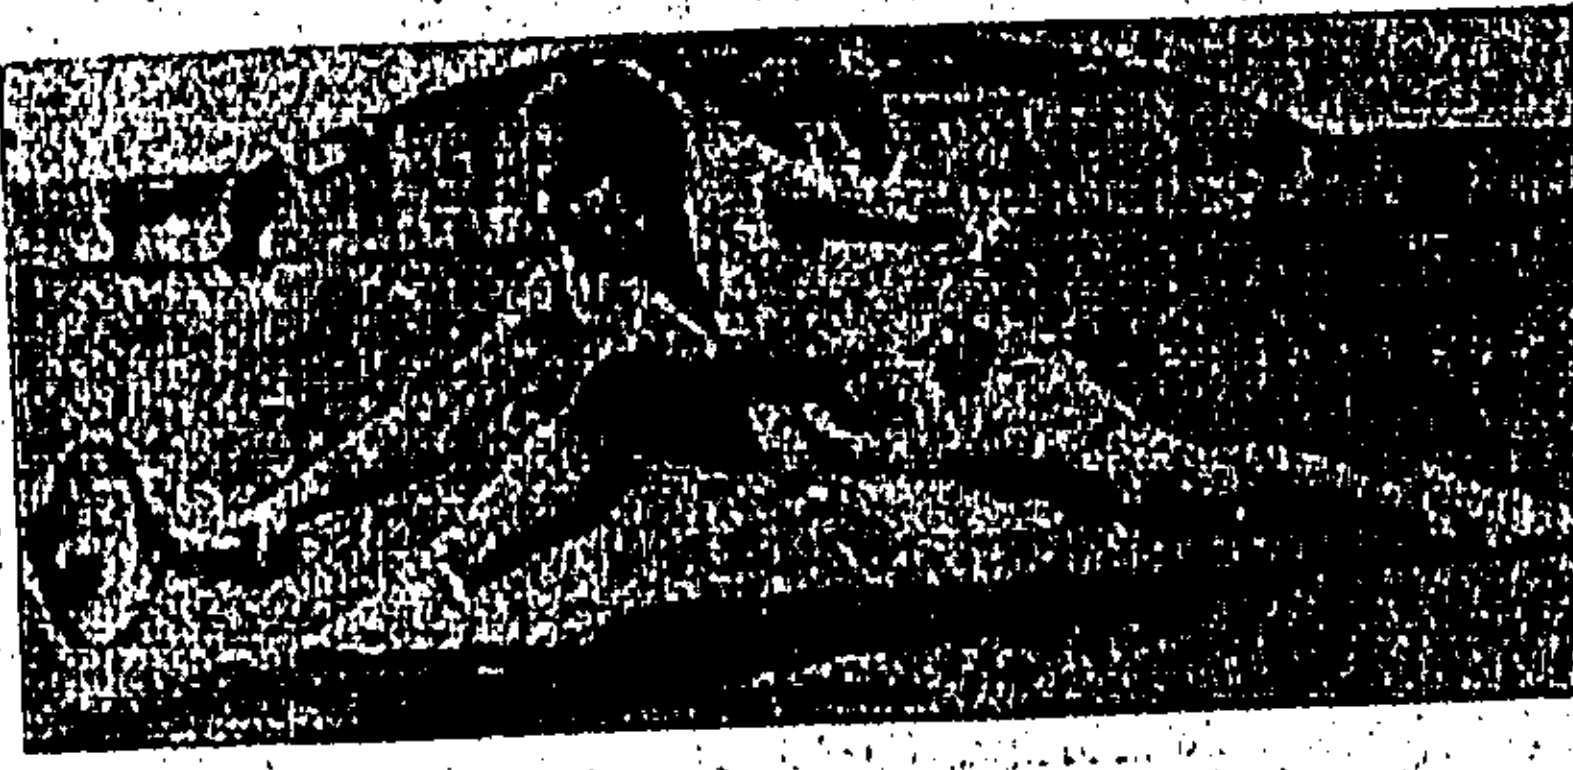

BELABOURED.
The crowd leapt as one man to its feet, yelling for McAvoy to finish it—and finish it he did like a thorough workman. Sexton, still dazed from the thump on his chin, his strength slipping from him as a result of McAvoy's vigorous body onslaught, was like a man caught in a blizzard and unable to protect himself.

He hung limply on the ropes while McAvoy belaboured him with blows from all angles. His hands dropped feebly to his sides, and the champion, taking his aim with all the care of a Blaisey marksman, rammed home the right upper-cut, which finished the fight.

Sexton hit the floor with such a bang that the counting of the seconds was a mere formality. He had to be dragged to his corner, and it needed half a bucket of water to bring him round.

McAvoy's form in the final round wiped out many of his earlier failings, but the truth is that his display for nine rounds was never out of the second class. He had little to beat and took a long time about it.

"I just don't know what happened to me," declared Sexton afterwards.

Invalid Sportsmen

WRIGHT TO GIVE UP FOOTBALL

(By "Veritas").

Illness has been claiming as victims several prominent local sportsmen.

H. D. Rumliah, the well known tennis player in slowly recovering from a severe bout of malaria, but is not likely to be seen on the courts for some little time.

His cousin, Sirdar, the Colony's champion, is also being kept off the tennis court with a bad knee which is gradually yielding to treatment. Sirdar, however, is definitely making progress and hopes to take up the racket again before the end of this month.

Charles Wright, who was to have had his first season in local league football this winter, has been forced to give up the idea of playing again this year. Another attack of malaria has left him with no alternative. Wright played in one league game only for the Club, and was then suffering from the effects of malaria.

FORMER L.T.A. SECRETARY.

His host of friends have learnt with concern of the serious illness which attacked Mr. C. P. F. James, former Hon. Secretary of the Lawn Tennis Association and a present member of the Interport Selection Committee.

Last week Mr. James had to undergo an operation, but reassuring news has since been given, and he is making satisfactory progress.

Kowloon on Saturday welcomed back Jones, their new capture this season who has been ill for nearly three weeks, although he is still far from his usual self. He played at inside left and was obviously still suffering from the effects of his illness.

Goh and S. A. Reed.

St. Andrew's v R.C.S.

St. Andrew's meet the Royal Corps of Signals in a friendly fixture on the Marina Ground to-morrow afternoon and will be represented by the following:

R.H. Wong; F. Broadbridge and E.H.P. White; J.T.K. Gilchrist, A.E.P. Guest, and A.B. Hamson; E. MacNider, A.S. Bliss, N.A.E. Mackay, E.F. Fincher and M. Weill.

LARWOOD'S FOOT

AN OPERATION IN LONDON

London, Oct. 16.

Harold Larwood, the Nottingham fast bowler, underwent a foot operation to-day at a London nursing home.

The operation was performed by the famous orthopaedic surgeon, Mr. W. R. Bristow, who with Lord Moynihan and Mr. R. G. Hogarth, the Nottingham specialist, made an examination of Larwood's foot after his return from Australia.

Mr. Hogarth has reported that the foot has not yielded to the rest treatment prescribed, and as there was some conflict of opinion in regard to the real nature of the injury an exploratory operation was the only course left.

CANTABS' BIG WIN

LATEST RUGBY
RESULTS

London, Nov. 6.

Cambridge University scored a brilliant rugby win to-day, when they met Edinburgh Academicals. The Cantabs scored 26 points without reply.

Devonport Services and Newport contested a thrilling encounter, from which the Services emerged winners by four points to three.—Reuter.

Wards. "I couldn't do a thing."

That frank admission was very true. I have never seen him fight so badly. He was as a man afflicted with stage fright. His limbs seemed unable to respond to the dictation of the brain. Slow, unenterprising, one-paced, neither a boxer nor a fighter, and without a semblance of fire—that was Sexton.

Nothing was clearer than that the occasion was too big for him—yet he has had 174 fights.

BAD START.

Sexton started on the wrong lines by moving slowly from his corner, pawing freely with his left hand, and waiting with an obvious show of apprehension for McAvoy's expected storming onslaughts.

This presented the initiative to the champion; but all credit to McAvoy for keeping it. Throughout the fight he dictated the way it should be fought.

It was not clever fighting that he showed; just honest two-handed slugging interspersed by some smart leading with his left. But it was sufficient. Sexton, unable to raise a gallop, tried to stop him with half-hearted lefts and a smothering cover. It is true to say that Sexton scarcely tried to make a fight of it.

He was concerned almost solely with defence, but though he made

EXTRADITION EFFORT.

SPANISH GOVERNMENT WANTS ESCAPED MILLIONAIRE

Gibraltar, Nov. 6.

It is learnt that the Spanish Government has decided to apply to the British Government for the extradition of Don Juan March, the millionaire who escaped from prison, allegedly after bribing the entire staff.

Don Juan says he will return to Spain if the Spanish High Court decides in his favour the validity of his election as a member of the High Court of Appeal, which he alleges political enemies succeeded in quashing before the lower court. Otherwise he will not return until he is guaranteed justice.

Don Juan said he had hoped that after 18 months confinement the Spanish authorities would liberate him, but he is disillusioned.—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Today's Contract Problem

With clubs trump, in the following hand, it looks as though South must lose a club and a spade. How should he play the hand to make a small slam?

North: ♠ A 4 ♠ A 6 2
♥ Q 7 3 ♠ 10 5 4 3
East: ♠ K 10 6 5 ♠ 7 5 4

South: ♠ A Q 3 ♠ K
♥ A K 9 4 ♠ A K 8
West: ♠ J 8 7 3 ♠ Q J 10
♥ 8 3 ♠ None
Solution in next issue. 13

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

Regardless of how scientific the game of bridge becomes, Lady Luck will always govern her share of the hands. There will always be the "good-breaking" hands and the "hard luck" hands. The preceding problem hand, shown here, is one of those perfect-breaking hands, and while the declarer, by making the right heart and spade play, can make six no trump, it should not be bid, of course.

The Bidding

The proper bidding is South pass, West pass. While North holds a five-card spade suit, his hand is strong enough to justify an original bid of one no trump. East passes. South bids two no trump, North can then bid three spades and South will go to three no trump.

The Play

If East elects to open a heart, the declarer is relieved of the guess. With a diamond opening, declarer will win the trick and must lead a small spade to dummy's king. When East's ten drops, declarer must try to determine whether

East's remaining spade is the jack or ace. Of course, if he plays

East for the ace and returns a small spade, finessing the eight spot, this will force East's ace. The club finesse is right and the declarer can spread the hand for six no trump.

Do you ever suffer from Head-ache, Cough, Cold, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Sore-throat, Toothache, or Asthma? If you do, will you allow us to solve the question of securing a cure, of course, a permanent one, and put an end to these dreadful enemies of humanity? Or do you like to be handicapped in society, in business or in your daily association with your strong, stout friends? For your own good, we would strongly advise you to have an open mind, and to make use of what you can call your true companion, instead of waiting for the time when you are attacked by disease, the youngest daughter of Mr. Fortune, Miss Fortune. When you are living and enjoying the gifts of nature, this unseen thief creeps into your system, and ruins you physically and mentally. Our preparation THE TIGER BALM, which has nothing to do with animal fat, or any injurious substance, will safeguard your interest. When you are in trouble, just pay a few copper coins, and the next moment you will find that this world of sorrow and pain is suddenly changed to one of peace and prosperity.

Constant Powdering Bad For Skin

Says
Specialist

Many women feel that they must constantly dabbling on powder in order to prevent, shiny noses or glistening faces. They never stop to realize what effect this may have upon their skin. A new and clever idea now enables any woman to take a few minutes of her time and have it last all day. A teaspoonful of mouse of cream added to a favorite face powder makes it softening and adherent. It stays on in spite of sun, wind or rain and even in the hottest bathroom. In Powder Tokalon, the finest air is scientifically blended with the finest face powder. Thus, Powder Tokalon is the only genuine mouse of cream face powder. It acts as a splendid skin tonic, stimulating the tissues and never clogging the pores—such as constant powdering may do. Apply Powder Tokalon in-morning morning to your own face and watch results. 888A.

than that. I felt that you had found a little more on the wreck than you actually told me. Did you?"

"Your instincts are wonderfully accurate," he replied, after a moment's pause. "Yes, I did. I found something—or heard something, rather—indicating that something was alive on the ship.
I couldn't investigate with Miss Haines by my side, so I decided to return and investigate later."

"You thought it was my father?"
she exclaimed.

"I thought it might be."

"But how do you know it wasn't?"

"Because I'm convinced it was our lunatic. And, by the way, the description of lunacy is not necessarily correct." He held out his hand. "Good-night, Miss Fyne.
And—thank you immensely for sitting at that window."

"Thank you for very considerably more," she answered, as she took his hand.

A moment later, she had disappeared along the passage, and Leonard joined Napoleon and Mr.
Griddle outside the latter's room.
Morley had already returned to the bed he had only grudgingly left.

"Hello—thought you were never coming," exclaimed Truelove.

"Though I'm dashed if I know why
I waited! I don't expect Mr.
Griddle wanted to stop and hear my illuminating conversation at this time of night."

"Well, as you have waited, let me hear two minutes of your illuminating conversation in my room, over a cigarette," suggested Leonard. "Is he worth listening to,
Mr. Griddle?"

"You've had several hours of him, so should know," observed the old man, banteringly. "But he is undoubtedly versatile. While you were saying good-night to the ladies—and taking a damn good time over it, eh, Truelove?—I've heard dissertations on socialism, test matches, how to foretell the weather by the moon—I understand it is going to be stormy."

"Very," grinned Napoleon.

"—and that most vital of all subjects, whether a tomato is a fruit or a vegetable. My mind will be full of problems when I go to sleep. By some mistake, we omitted the Sineleth theory."

"Oh, you shall have that over the breakfast-table to-morrow, sir," Napoleon promised.

"Good. Meanwhile I will contain my soul in patience." Mr.
Griddle was certainly in a very amiable mood, for he smiled most engagingly through his irony.

"And now, for bed. Oh, by the way, there's just one more problem
I'd like to sleep on—as I have so many. Could you describe that lunatic fellow you saw on the wreck? He rather interests me."

"He rather interests all of us," responded Leonard, with a swift glance at his interrogator. "Unfortunately we didn't see him very clearly, and the only moment he stood still he had the moon behind him, so all I can say is that he was tall and lanky, and had a beard."

"A beard," murmured Mr. Griddle. "A beard." He paused.
"What sort of a beard? Did you notice its colour?"

"I noticed nothing whatever beyond what I have told you," answered Leonard, still watching the old man.

"Well, well, then that's the end of that," exclaimed Mr. Griddle, suddenly. "So I'll say good-night.
See you at breakfast—unless I oversleep myself."

"Or we do," returned Leonard, and the old man entered his room chuckling.

Napoleon looked at Leonard enquiringly.

"I see," blinked Napoleon. "I'm

TO LISTEN for creepy sounds and deathly shrieks. "Quite—sure, you wouldn't like me to go for the police, while you stay and be night-watchman?"

"Quite sure," smiled Leonard.
"Don't worry. Nothing's likely to happen, but someone's got to keep awake in case it does, and that someone's you."

Five minutes later, Napoleon rose, walked to the door, and opened it.

"Good-night, old chap," he said, loudly. "I don't like your brand of cigarettes, but thanks, all the same. Happy dreams."

"Same to you. Sleep well," replied Leonard.

Then, with a wink, Napoleon returned softly into the room, while Leonard stumped out of it, his footsteps dying away down the passage as Napoleon turned the key and locked himself in.

(To Be Continued)

"Do you really want me?" he asked, in low voice.

Leonard nodded, opened his own bedroom door, and drew his second-in-command in.

"No sleep for you to-night, old chap," he whispered, conducting him to the side of the room farthest from Mr. Griddle's. "Or for me, either."

"How divine," answered Napoleon. "What are we going to do?"

"I am going for the police, and you are going to stay in this room, with the door locked, and your ears peeled. You will act as night-watchman till I return."

"By all means—anything you like," said Napoleon. "But look here, I say—do night-watchmen generally lock themselves in rooms?"

"No, but you will, because Mr.
Griddle may grow curious and poke his head in if you don't, and your job is to let Mr. Griddle think you are me. If he knocks, snore. But if you don't hear him getting back

NATIONAL PARTY

HINT OF CHANGES IN BRITAIN

London, Nov. 6.
It is understood on good authority that there are those among the Ministry who are studying with concern the lesson of the East Fulham by-election, in which the Conservatives, fighting without allies, were signally defeated.

It is reported that there are certain Ministers, among whom is the Prime Minister himself, who are contemplating the formation of a National Party to replace the present Conservative control.

This idea is supported by the followers of Sir John Simon, the National Labourites, and many Conservatives, but there would be a considerable independent Conservative movement even were the formation of a National Party a reality, observers believe.—Reuter.

Mr. MacDonald's Statement.

Talk of the formation of a new National Party was given strength by a luncheon given by the National Labour Committee to-day, at which the principal guests were Mr. MacDonald, Mr. Baldwin and Sir John Simon.

Three hundred guests attended altogether, and listened to a speech by the Prime Minister.

Mr. MacDonald said that Mr.
Baldwin and Sir John Simon and himself were separated in political ideas but united in their object.
The National Government was a combination which none of them would attempt to break, he said, as long as there was a national need for its continuance.

The National Government, he added, was the greatest steadying influence to be found in the whole world, both in trade and conference.

Referring to the attacks against the Government he said it was upon the very success of the Government that the criticisms had been cast. He admitted that the National Government had not issued much propaganda. They must rectify that omission, he declared.

A National Government requires national propaganda.

Sees Transformation.

Sir John Simon, following, said that a transformation was occur-ing in the British mind on the subject of party politics. It should be noted that the old dividing controversies were dead, because each party had made its contribution to the common national position, he said. He concluded that the present threat to British parliamentary institutions was one of dictatorship; a danger from which a national combination of parties must save Great Britain.

Mr. Baldwin declared that the National Government was a combination for its duration. But it was not bothering about its duration as it was a long time before there was any general election, and there was a great deal to be done.

Great Britain was in an incomparably better position than she was two years ago. He had never been ruffled by by-elections, he said. They were wrestling with an entirely new set of problems which compelled them to branch out in an entirely new direction.—Reuter.

Significant Figures.

Labour won the East Fulham by-election handily, with a majority of 4,840. Mr. J. C. Wilmot, the Labour candidate, polled 17,790 against Mr. W. J. Waldron,
Conservative, who polled 12,950.

East Fulham was a Conservative seat at the last election, when Sir
K. Vaughan-Morgan polled 23,438, piling up a majority of 14,521 against the two Labour candidates.

The significance of the swing to Labour in the borough elections recently has been noted in Government circles.

CROWN LAND SALE.

PLOT AT SHANSHUIPO SOLD AT $3 THE FOOT

At the offices of the Public Works Department yesterday afternoon, a plot of Crown land at Shanshui-po, registered as New Kowloon Island Lot No. 2175, was put up for auction, the upset price being based at three dollars a square foot.

There was only one bidder, and he secured the lot at the upset price of $7,770.

The land, measuring 2,590 sq. ft. is formed of a still undeveloped area at the junction of Tung Chau and Kiu Kiang Streets.

By the conditions of purchase, the new owners, Messrs. Sam Kee, building contractors, are required at their own expense to form the site by cutting to such levels as the Director of Public Works may approve, and to hand back, free of cost, to the Government, as much of it as shall be required for the natural continuation of the roads intersecting at this point.
Messrs. Sam Kee intend to build a workshop on the site.

POUND SHOWING STRENGTH.

FRANC WEAKENED BY POLITICS

London, Nov. 6.
The feature of to-day's Exchange is the strength of sterling.
The U. S. dollar now above parity, and is quoted at $4.87½ against the pound. The closing price on Saturday was $4.85½.

The French franc also weakened to-day, falling off from 80.18 to 80.37, owing to the increasing doubts that M. Sarrant, the new leader of the Government, will be able to balance his budget, and the general confidence in sterling.

There was $300,000 in gold offered on the market and taken by the Continent at a price of 131 shilling 10 pence.

There was, however, no evidence of American buying.—Reuter.

SLUMP IN U.S. DOLLAR

Lowest For Nearly Twenty Years

London, Nov. 6.
For the first time since 1914, the English pound was to-day worth more than twenty shillings on New York. The par quotation for the dollar is 4.85 2/3 to the pound. That figure was exceeded soon after the foreign exchange market opened to-day. — British Wireless.

CLAIM AGAINST BUFFET

$50 A MONTH FOR LIFE?

A decision which may provide Frederico Leocadio Silva, broker, of 18, Chatham Road, with $50 a month for life was made by the Puisne Judge, Mr. Lindsay at the Supreme Court this morning.

Silva sued the Orpheum Buffet and Edward McKoon and Selby Smith, partners of the buffet, for $50 payable on August 31 under an agreement in writing.

Smith appeared in court but it transpired later that McKoon had left the Colony and his whereabouts were unknown.

Mr. M. A. do Silva appeared for plaintiff and Mr. T. P. Kemble, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, defended.

Opening his case, Mr. Silva said his client met McKoon in October last year and subsequently put up $5,000 to become the third partner in the buffet. An agreement was drawn up by Messrs. Remondos and Silva on behalf of plaintiff.

LOSE 9 WICKETS FOR 84 RUNS

DUCKITT BREAKS UP THE ONLY STAND

MALAYA BAT ON WINNING TOSS

MALAYA COLLAPSED AGAINST HONGKONG IN THE INTERPORT MATCH THIS AFTERNOON AND SHORTLY AFTER THREE O'CLOCK HAD LOST NINE WICKETS WITH ONLY 84 RUNS ON THE BOARD.

At one time, it looked as though their position would be even worse. Five wickets fell for 46 runs, but Alvis and Jonklass became associated adding over 20 runs for the sixth wicket.

As soon as they had been separated, however, the rot set in.

HONGKONG'S KEENNESS IN FIELD

H. Owen Hughes, the local captain, led the Hongkong team into the field shortly after 1.15 p.m., Malaya having won the toss and sent Hongkong out to field.

The wicket had improved considerably since the morning, although it still looked to be on the heavy side as the result of yesterday's rains.

The two teams had lunch at the Hongkong Cricket Club pavilion at 12.30 p.m. H.E. Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., the Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood and Mr. H. R. B. Hancock being amongst those present.

D. C. Burn and R. G. Gibson, were the opening pair, while the Hongkong attack was entrusted to F. Goodwin and A. R. Minu.

GIBSON CAUTIOUS

Bowling from the Naval Yard end, Goodwin had three slips, Owen Hughes, Redmond and Fincher.

Burn glanced his first ball past fine leg for a three. Gibson was content to play himself in for the rest of the over.

MALAYA—1st Innings.

C.A. Speldewinde not out	0

Total (for 9 wickets)	84

In his first over, Minu gave away two singles.

Burn was playing the bowling very confidently but Gibson was very cautious.

A beautiful glance by Gibson off Goodwin's last ball, second over, registered the first boundary of the day and sent up the 10 in as many minutes.

The heavy ground retarded Goodwin's speed, but he made a couple of them kick up. Gibson was not unduly troubled, however, though he gave Goodwin his first "maiden" over.

BURN RUN OUT.

Minu was now finding his length and sent down good balls in his third over. Off his last ball, Gibson who did not seem very comfortable against him, called for a short run after patting the ball to extra cover, but smart fielding on the part of Pearce and Dunkley had Burn run out by a foot.

It was a dangerous run, and Burn paid the penalty. He had contributed six runs to Malaya's total of 12.

Fielding at "silly leg," Duckitt was very energetic and saved many a short run.

After playing himself in, Eu Cheow-tek opened his account with a single off Goodwin.

GIBSON CAUGHT.

Goodwin claimed a wicket in his fifth over, Gibson poking a ball to Duckitt who made no mistake with the catch. Gibson had scored 9, and the total was 15, 25 minutes' play.

Minu had Hamilton beaten all the way when the Malayan skipper faced him for the first time, but his wicket remained intact. Two balls later, Hamilton broke his "duck" with a single.

Behind the sticks, Dunkley let nothing go past him. Standing well up to Goodwin, he took several leg balls well.

En delighted the crowd with a fine display of batting, pulling Minu for two boundaries and straight-driving him for a four off successive balls. 20 was reached in 33 minutes, and 30 five minutes later.

HAMILTON FAILS.

Batting confidently, Hamilton snicked a fast one from Goodwin to Redmond at first slip, but the was too low for a catch. Off the next ball, he cut the ball hard to Fincher at third slip and the K.C.C. man took it in fine style with his left hand.

With the score at 31, Owen Hughes took off Minu and Garthwaite went on from the Supreme Court end. Off his first ball, Eu took a single and Croome also took a single, Eu repeating his performance before the end of the over.

EU DISAPPOINTS.

Eu was playing a faultless game, and reached his 20 in 30 minutes. Just as he was looking set for a big score, however, he gave his first chance, playing forward to Goodwin and poking the ball up to Dunkley, who took the catch easily. 33 for 4 wickets.

He batted very well and looked like the one man who might save Malaya from collapse.

L. Alvis, the baby of the team, went in wearing a topee to join Croome with a "do or die" look on his face. Jumping about the crease, he caused a lot of amusement, and once, he dived full.

POLICY OF PEACE

RED ARMY PREPARED FOR EMERGENCY

Moscow, Nov. 6.

While striving for peace with all, the Soviet is compelled to take defensive measures, declared M. Molotov, the President of the Council of Commissars to-day.

M. Molotov was addressing an important conference in Moscow in connexion with the sixteenth anniversary of the revolution.

He declared emphatically that the Soviet's policy in the Far East was directed towards peaceful relations with her neighbours, but they must reckon with events in Manchuria and the fact that agreements concluded with the Soviet had been and were being violated.

JAPAN WARNED.

M. Molotov referred to the "ridiculous plans of some Japanese statesmen in reference to the seizure of Siberia and the near coast region" adding that the Soviet had strengthened the Red Army in the Far East and in the case of an attack would do everything to ensure that the Red Army obtained complete victory and full destruction of their adversary. — Reuters.

THE FARM REVOLT

BRIDGE BURNED NEAR SIOUX

New York, Nov. 6.
A critical situation faces the Administration on the farm strike front, where the disposition to violence is growing.

The leader of the strike movement, Mr. Milo Reno, in a statement issued at Des Moines, declared:

"The betrayal of the farmers by President Roosevelt and Mr. Wallace leaves the farmers but one course; to strike with all the powers they possess.

"It will," he adds, "be a long and bitter struggle, perhaps, and no-one can foretell the end. But, President Roosevelt has deliberately broken his election pledge to the farmers and no amount of smiles or of sophistries can alter the situation."

TROOPS WANTED.

It is learned from Sioux City, that the City and County authorities have requested the assistance of National Guard troops, following the burning of a railway bridge three miles from Sioux City.

A battle-royal in Congress is foreshadowed in an announcement by Governor Olson of Minnesota, who declared that the Governors of the Western States will unite to demand of Congress steps for Federal price-fixing for crops restrictions and a general farm relief programme.

GOVERNMENT TO FIGHT AS UNIT

ANTICIPATIONS OF A GENERAL ELECTION

DEMOCRACY'S FATE

LONDON, NOV. 7.

KEEN INTEREST HAS BEEN AROUSED IN POLITICAL CIRCLES OF ALL OPINION BY YESTERDAY'S SPEECHES BY THE THREE PARTY LEADERS IN THE GOVERNMENT.

It was the first occasion on which any Party leader had publicly suggested that the national political combination should maintain their co-operation in the next general election.

This is generally interpreted to mean that while each of the three parties in the Government will continue to retain its individuality, the Government intends to fight the next election as a National Government. — Reuters.

SIT JOHN SIMON'S SPEECH

London, Nov. 6.

That the National Government has realised the urgent necessity for vigorous organisation to meet the challenge of those who would destroy democracy in Britain and substitute, under one name or another, dictatorship, was indicated to-day in speeches by the three principal Government leaders.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Baldwin and Sir John Simon, leaders of the three parties united in maintaining the National Government, were the guests at a luncheon given to-day by the National Labour Committee.

Each in turn spoke of the value to country of the National Government in overcoming the crisis which led to its formation and in tackling the difficulties which still had to be overcome.

The Premier said that the three of them were united in their objects. He believed that since the National Government was formed two years ago it had been the greatest steady force in the whole world.

MR. BALDWIN SPEECH.

Mr. Baldwin said that Britain was in an incomparably better position than she was two years ago but there was much still to be done, both nationally and internationally, which required that they should continue to maintain the closest collaboration.

Above all they had to make the people realise the real need for the preservation of democracy in Great Britain and the National Government, he maintained, were the guardians of real social democracy. Venturing one prophecy, the Conservative leader said that in whatever from the next election came unquestionably the great issue would be: "Are we going to tread in the path of constitutional democracy or are we going to scrap it?"

There could be only one answer to that question if all who believed in constitutional democracy stood together and fought out the issue.

CONTROVERSY DEAD.

Sir John Simon declared that the old controversies that divided the parties were dead because each party had made its contribution to what was now a common national possession.

"I was brought up in the strictest school of Liberalism," he said, "and I claim that the contribution of Liberalism in last generation was immense and beneficent."

We fought for the extension of the Franchise, for complete religious liberty, for the extension of self-government in the Empire, for bringing the resources of the State to help of those who needed help most.

ESTABLISHED FABRIC

"Now I say, in the presence of Mr. Baldwin, and with the greatest confidence, that these things, which were gained in the face of opposition, have become part of the established fabric of British policy and belong just as much to Conservatism as to any other British political creed."

"And in the same way, in the past generation, the immense contribution of enlightened Conservatism which at the time was belittled and criticised from the Opposition quarter is to-day recognised and acknowledged with pride by us all."

NO SIMPLE FORMULA.

Referring to the old free trade versus protection controversies, Sir John Simon said: "Both sides have now realised that in this complicated modern world there was no single and simple formula which would get them through their troubles. The past party controversies are dead." "Let the dead bury their dead. There is great work to be done but it will only be done if we work together." Sir John pointed out that Britain was one of the few ancient countries in which Parliamentary institutions were actively and successfully operating. The threat to these institutions by whatever name it sought to disguise itself, was a threat of dictatorship. That was a danger from which the national combination of parties had to save Britain. — British Wireless.

TIN CONSUMPTION IMPROVES

OFFICIAL FIGURES FOR YEAR

London, Nov. 6.
The world consumption of tin has been well maintained, according to The Hague office of the International Tin Research Council.

World consumption during the year ended August 31 amounted to 118,800 tons, an increase of eighteen thousand as compared with the year ended December 31, 1932.

The United States consumed 16,900 tons more, Europe 1,600 tons more and Japan 180 tons. — Reuters.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

You Can Sing in the Rain in These Velvets!

WATER PROOFING PROCESS GIVES MATERIAL NEW POPULARITY

By Joan Savoy

Being caught in a rain is no longer a calamity if you wear a dress made of water-proof fabric. It is possible to get materials which resist rain absolutely. Feed drinks which you spill in your lap slide off gracefully. Any of you won't have to give dirty looks to the waiter who spills liquids on your shoulders and sleeves.

Velvets—and silky, transparent varieties—have long been associated with party clothes. They were rarely considered for wear on casual occasions. They were too fragile and spotted too easily.

Now you can have a velvet street frock. And it is no more perishable than a silk dress.

Not that this water-proofing process is confined to velvets. Silks of all kinds, as well as cottons, have been treated by it. If you had a waterproof linen ensemble this summer, you probably know just how convenient materials treated in this manner can be.

Hats, made this new way, are real innovations. You won't have to grab your hat and carry it under your coat if you're sure that it won't spot with the sudden down-pour.

With velvets becoming so popular for fall and the new water-proof process making them so serviceable, there's no reason why you shouldn't plan to have a few velvet costumes in your wardrobe.

There's something about a velvet dress that makes a woman feel as though she "owned the world." It feels so luxurious.

For the long-necked, thin-armed tall woman there is a lovely dress (left) of transparent velvet. The long, interesting, raglan sleeves are shirred around the shoulders and the attractive scarf collar is pulled through the belt.

The whole general effect of the frock is rounding and molding. It will go far toward covering up even the most angular lines.

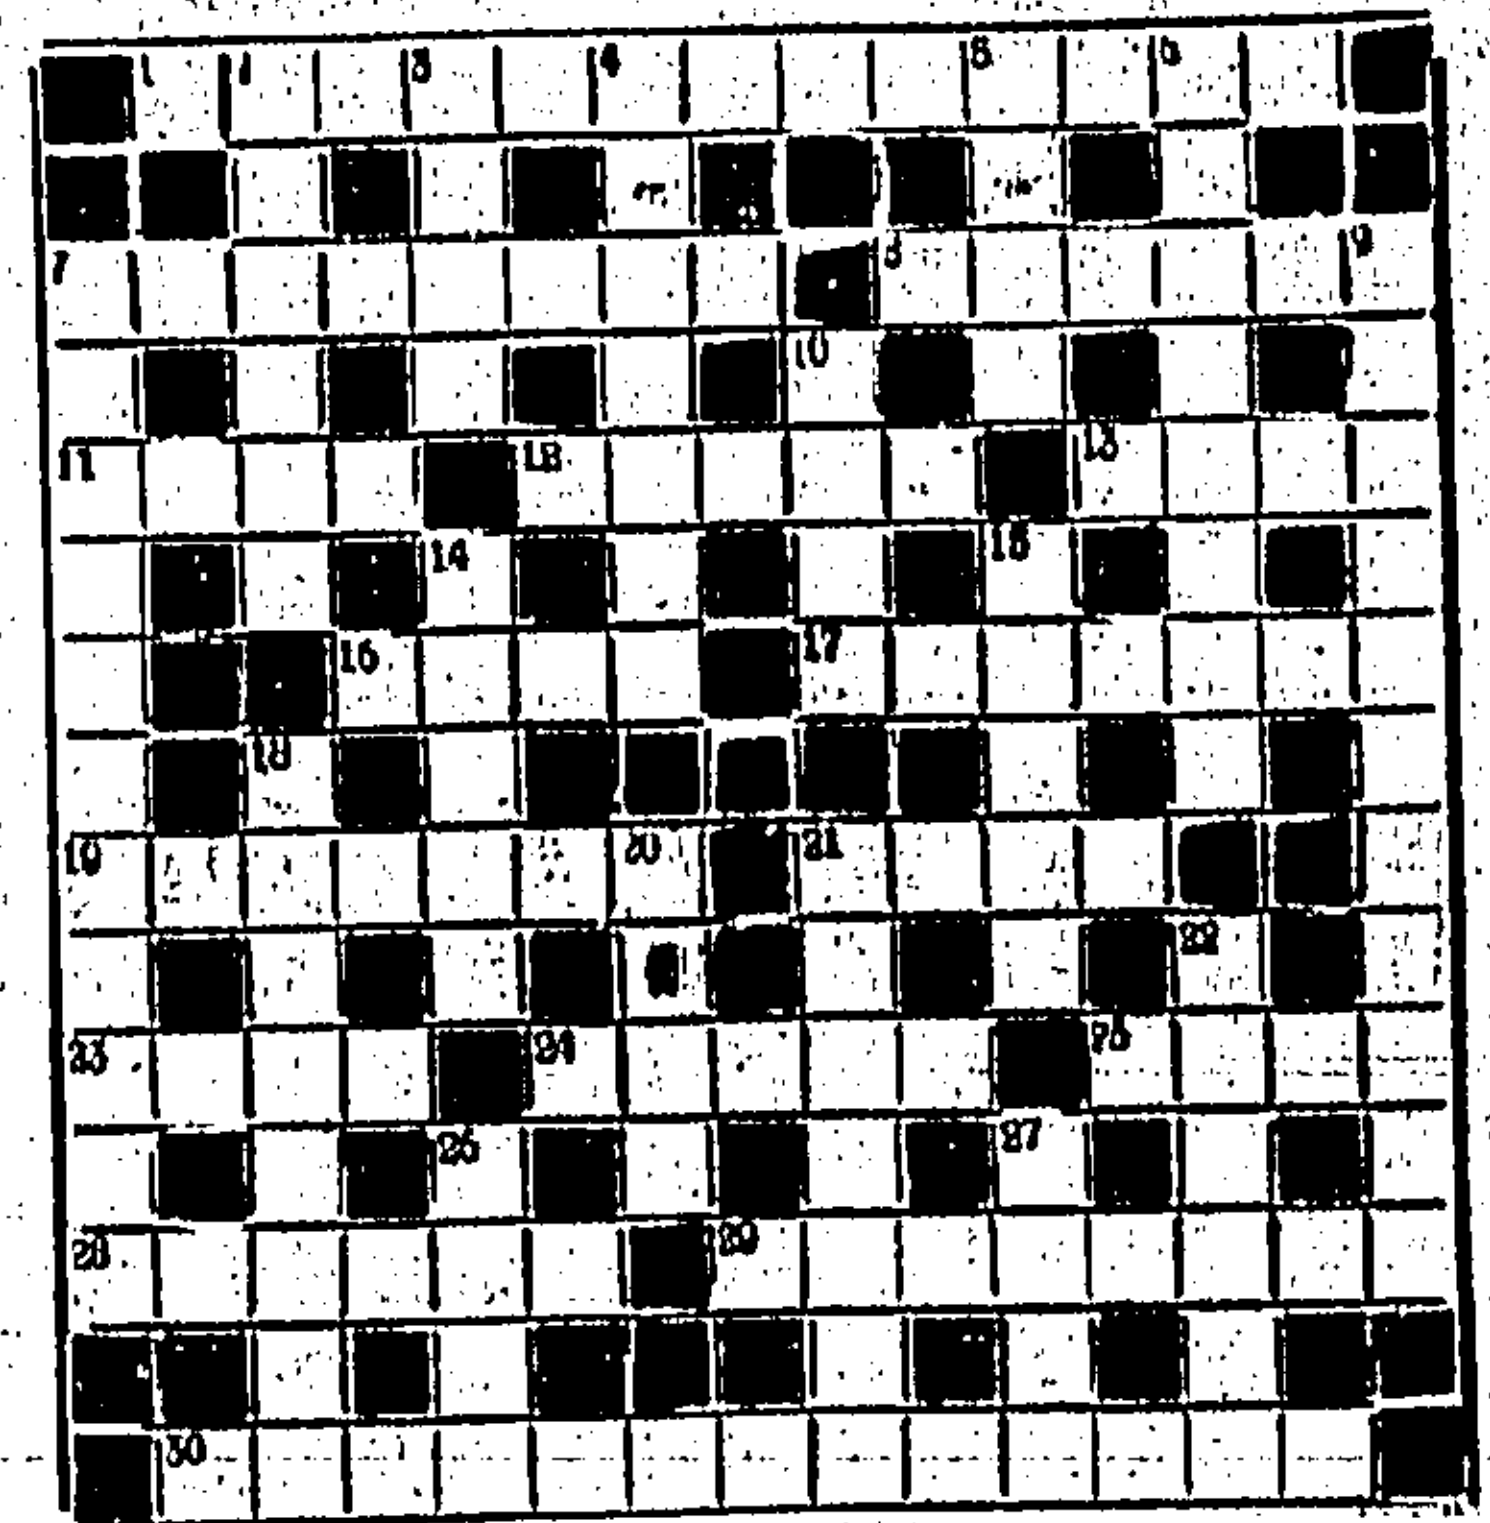

Another becoming model (right) is inclined to give the figure an "hour glass" shape. The shirred shoulders, cowl neckline and the molded hips, with flaring skirt, all tend toward that end.

The frock is most practical for informal afternoon, as well as for street wear. It won't spot in the rain.

The neck and waist are adorned with a silver rope ending in black silk tassels.

The costume is topped with a cute little black velvet hat which also resists water.

First Impressions.

When you meet people for the first time first impressions count for a great deal, so don't risk being handicapped at the start.

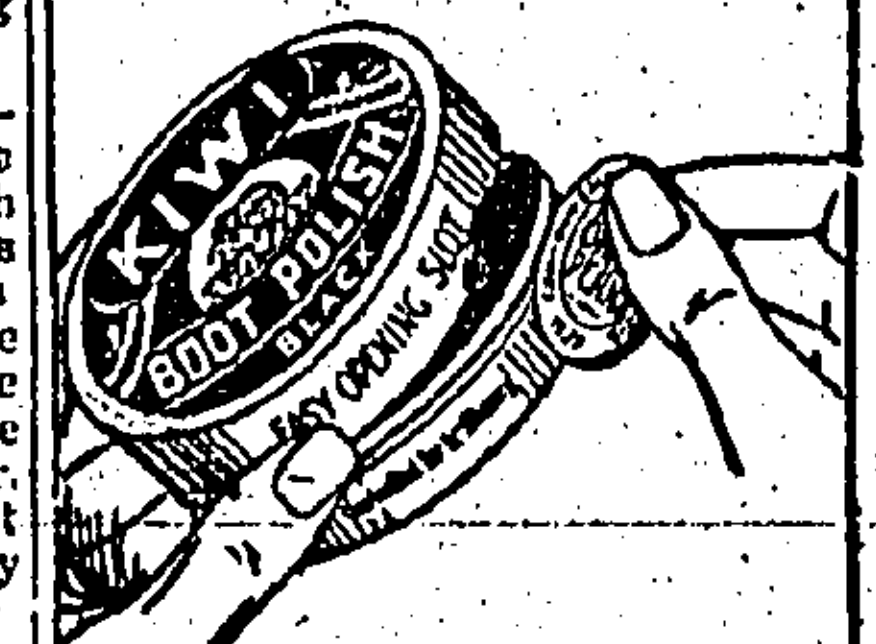

Few things make a worse impression on new acquaintances than a cold, clumsy hand, lack of warmth and lustre in the eyes, a listless indifferent manner. Your hands, your eyes, and your general attitude towards the world really indicate the condition of your health much more than the qualities of your character. Yet, unfortunately, people who do not know you properly are very likely to think otherwise.

The only way to overcome chilly, damp hands, to restore brightness to the eyes and cheery vitality to an anemic, enfeebled system is through the blood. Your blood is the source and sustainer of your life, and by tonic treatment by means of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills you can so increase, enrich, and revitalize it that the stream of fresh, pure, red, whole, some blood that is created will speedily carry new life, strength and energy to every organ, nerve and fibre throughout your whole system.

So why go on being held back by such physical deficiencies? You can obtain a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from your chemist to-day. But be sure to ask for Dr. Williams', and accept nothing else.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Staircase Conversations."
A church clock was tring half-past two when the little party got back to the Marmalade Hotel. The return journey from the wreck had been a silent one, with queer emotions and twisted thoughts for company, but as they entered the hotel lounge tongues were loosened again and decisions became imperative.
"What do we do now?" asked Napoleon. "Go to bed or make a night of it?"
"I suggest bed," answered Mr. Griddle. "Let well alone, and everything may come all right in the morning."
He glanced at Leonard, and Leonard shrugged his shoulders.
"You may be right," he said. "Anyway the majority of us can go to bed. There's no need for you to keep up—"

"There's no need for anybody to keep up," interposed the old man, "but if we decide to spend the whole night rushing about, then I'm game to rush about with the rest of you! I'm merely suggesting that we can't do anything more to-night, and that bed is the best place for the lot of us. As I said before, everything may wear a different aspect by breakfast-time."
"Seems to me a dead man wears the same aspect whatever the time is," observed Napoleon, and stopped rather abruptly as he caught Leonard's warning eye.
"Yes, of course, there is that," nodded Mr. Griddle. "The morning won't bring him to life again. All the same—"

He stopped, as Beryl Haines rejoined them. She had slipped quietly away as soon as they had entered the lounge-hall.

"Well?" asked Leonard, turning to her quickly.

She shook her head. "He's not returned," she said. "It looks a bit rotten, doesn't it?"

"If you mean that there's any need to connect the disappearance of your brother with the murdered man on the wreck—" began Mr. Griddle, but she interrupted him, with some warmth.

"I don't mean anything of the sort, Mr. Griddle," she exclaimed. "That idea's too ridiculous even to consider. What I meant was that it was rotten to find him gone, when I'd hoped he'd be back again by now."

Her voice trembled slightly, and Jessica turned to her sympathetically. She was too close to her own trouble to be callous to Beryl's.

"He'll probably be back soon," Miss Haines said. "We can sit up and wait for him, if you like."

"Yes, we'll all sit up," exclaimed Mr. Griddle. "Perhaps Miss Fyne could produce some tea?"

But Leonard surprised the party by abruptly vetoing the idea. After all, he asked, what could they do? Guy Haines would return in his own good time, and they would all be wrecks if they stayed up any longer. Napoleon backed Leonard up, for no reason other than that he supposed he was intended to. Morley was quite ready for bed, and when two girls had caught Leonard Sefton's eye and had gathered something of its vague message, they agreed that retirement was the only sensible course.

On their way upstairs, however, Beryl managed to exchange a few whispered words with Leonard.

"What about Guy?" she asked. "I don't like leaving things as they are."

"Things are not going to be left as they are," Leonard replied. "The police will be notified inside an hour."

"But I thought you said—"

"Yes, I know what I said. That was because I don't want everybody to know I'm going for the police."

"I see," murmured Beryl, glancing towards Mr. Griddle who was ahead of them. "You've told Miss Fyne?"

"No, I've not had a chance. And I don't think I shall. It might only worry her more—" through murderous lanes while one's trying to get to sleep."

"You needn't worry."

"All right. I won't. But Miss Fyne might. So I think you're wise. There's one thing I want to ask your advice about, though. Should I wake my people up and tell them about Guy?"

"You know best, Miss Haines," responded Leonard. "If I were not going to the police, I should advise it, but as they could do nothing—and there may be a perfectly simple explanation in the morning—it seems rather a pity to turn a peaceful night into a restless one."

"Right again," nodded Beryl. "Just what I think. But—I wish we could do something. I say, are you going to the police station alone?"

"Yes."

"Why not take Nappy—Napoleon—with you? Do you know, I think he's a bit more useful than he looks."

"However he looks, he is useful," answered Leonard, smiling. "He's making Miss Fyne laugh at this moment. But I can't take him with me. He has got to be on duty here."

"What do you mean?"

"That when a man is useful, he must sometimes forego his sleep. Napoleon Truelove will have to keep wide awake till I return, listening for noises."

Mr. Griddle's voice intruded from above.

"Coming, Mr. Sefton?" he called. "We're neighbours, aren't we?"

"In minute, Mr. Griddle," he returned.

Saying good-night to Beryl, he sought Jessica, who was lingering at the point where her way separated from his.

"I'll do my best," she promised. "No more sitting by the window, and that sort of thing," he went on. "You oughtn't to have done it before, you know."

"Oh! And suppose I hadn't?"

"That's true," he admitted. "If you hadn't, Truelove and I would still be marooned on that deck out there." He glanced instinctively out of the passage window by which they stood, half-dreading that he might see the light again, and thereby find another mystery added to his perplexing store. But no light glowed. The hulk was a dead black smudge of shadow in the moonlight. "Yes, I can't say I'm sorry you sat by your window, Miss Fyne," he added. "Why did you do it?"

"If there are going to be any 'whys,' I'll ask one first," she challenged him. "Why did you go to the wreck?"

He thought for a moment, then smiled.

"Could I let Mr. Truelove go all alone?" he asked.

"That story may have deceived others—"

"To be frank, I don't believe it has," he murmured.

"Well, it didn't deceive me! I felt sure you'd go."

"Why?"

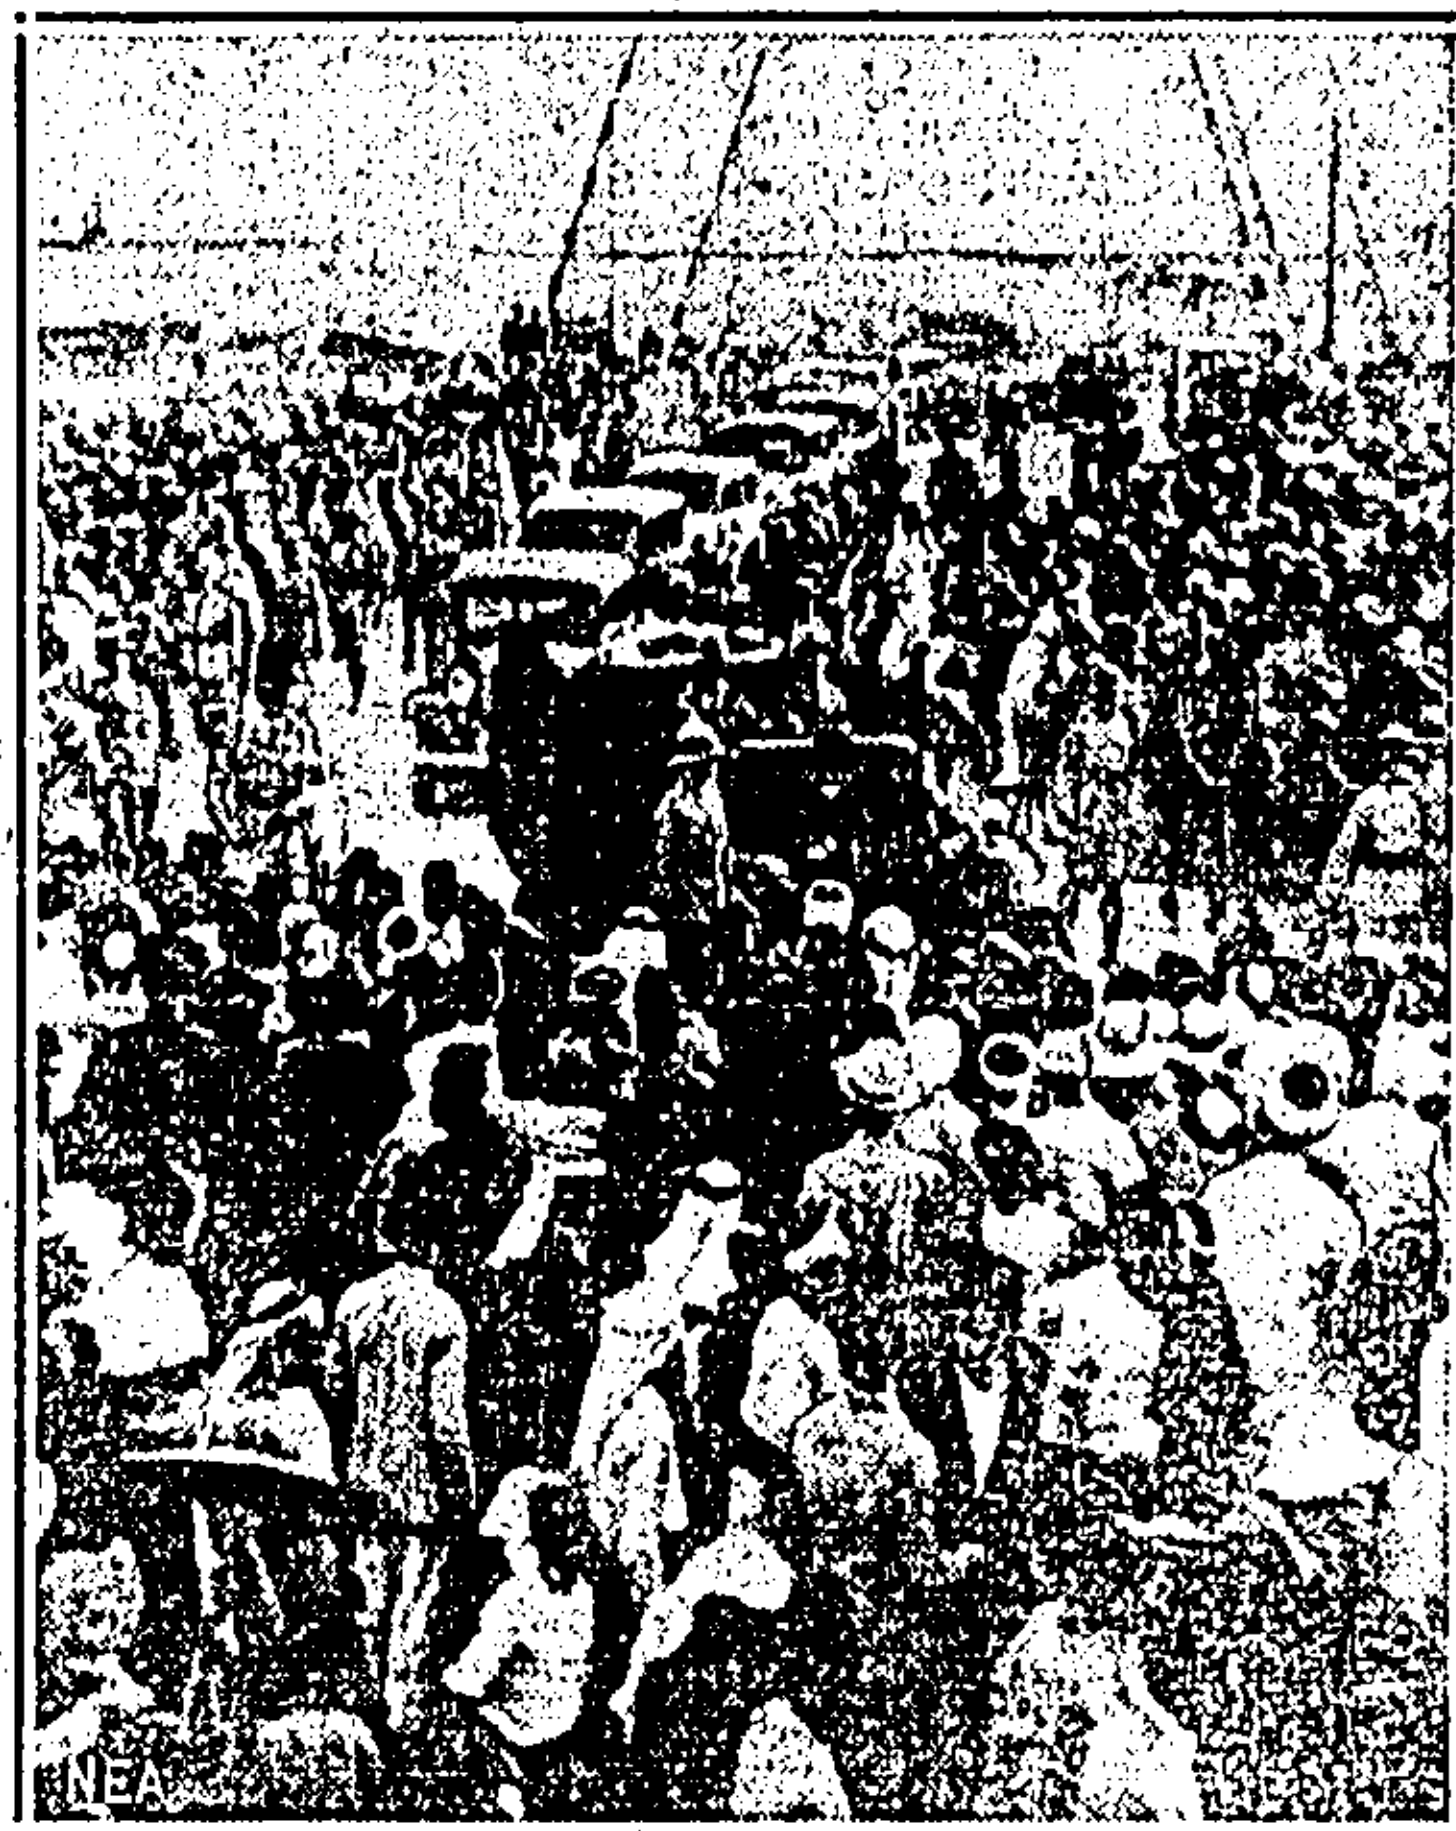

"Instinct, perhaps. You've not told me, Mr. Sefton—who is the decent man on the wreck? Do you know?"

"The same poor fellow who Jim found at the foot of the gap," she stared at him. "It's true, Miss Fyne. Don't ask me to explain it. Everything will be cleared up presently, and our brains will be all the keener to do the solving if we get sleep while we may."

"I've told you. An instinct. But perhaps it was a little more—"

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an Extraordinary General Meeting of the above Company will be held at the Board Room of the Company, Exchange Building, (Second floor), Des Voeux Road Central, Victoria, Hongkong, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November, 1933, at 12 Noon when the subjoined Resolutions will be proposed as Special Resolutions, viz:—

(1) That the present authorised Capital of the Company of $5,000,000, divided into 500,000 shares (hereinafter referred to as "old shares") of the nominal value of $10 each, the whole of which have been issued, be increased to $7,500,000 by the creation of 250,000 new shares of the nominal value of $10 each ranking as for dividend as hereinafter mentioned and in all other respects pari passu with the old shares constituting the Company's present issued capital.

(2) That the said 250,000 new shares be offered forthwith in the first instance (in the proportion of one new share for every complete number of two old shares held by them respectively) to the members of the Company who on the 28th day of November 1933, are registered in the Company's Share Register as the holders of the said 500,000 old shares at par and so that on acceptance of such offer the sum of $2.50 per share shall be due and payable leaving the balance due on each of such said new shares of $7.50 per share to be called up at such time or times as the Directors of the Company shall see fit to make Calls in respect thereof and so that such new shares so accepted as aforesaid shall rank for dividend as from First day of January, 1934.

And that such offer be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted by the member on behalf of himself or his nominee, will be deemed to be declined, and that the Directors be at liberty to fix such time or times and to extend such time or times to such date or dates, and upon such terms as they may think fit. And further that any of the said new 250,000 shares which shall not be taken by the Company's shareholders in manner aforesaid be disposed of in such manner as such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Directors shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

(3) That no shareholder shall be entitled to any offer of a fraction of an additional new share in respect of any odd old share held by such shareholder.

The Transfer Books of the Company will be closed from the 26th November 1933, to 28th November 1933, (both days inclusive) during which period no transfer of shares can be registered.

Make-Up in Color Harmony

Secret of Attraction?

Florence Vondelle Interview JEAN HARLOW

"Colon in make-up must mean color harmony," says Jean Harlow. "Add, of course, Max Factor, who creates all the make-up used by stars and studios, has the perfect answer in powder, rouge and lipstick harmonized in color for each type."

1. "To harmonize with my complexion coloring... platinum blonde hair, very fair skin and blue eyes... Max Factor's Cream Rouge is perfect. So soft and fine in texture, it blends naturally with the skin, creating a skin-smooth make-up that I know will cling for hours."

2. "Rouge should impart a lifelike, delicate flush of color, and I find Max Factor's Cream Rouge the correct color harmony for my type. Creamy-smooth texture, it blends easily and clings perfectly. And here's a hint... pat it on lightly, blend with fingertips to gain an added softness of coloring."

3. "Lip make-up is so important... it must be moisture proof, it must be permanent in color, it must harmonize with your coloring, your powder and your rouge. So I use Max Factor's Super-Indelible Lipstick... Flame is my color harmony tone. I make up the upper lip first, press my lips together, and then fill in the natural contour."

at home with Greek tragedy or Offenbach, Shakespeare or Schiller, or a modern intimate comedy, is one of the few exceptions. The greatest of them have their particular point of view stamped upon all they do. The best results are obtained by varying one's selection of director as the needs of the production require rather than by clinging to one.

JUDGMENT-ALL-IMPORTANT.

One hears a good deal about the over-crowding of the profession, but the greatest difficulty besetting a manager-still is to find the right cast when he wants it. I have kept plays for years because I have not been able to cast them as I wanted when I wanted.

I have mentioned "courage" as one of the chief assets of the manager-producer. This means a willingness to listen to outside suggestions but a fearless reliance in the end on one's own judgment in the choice of play, in the selection of material and personnel, and, if necessary, in scrapping them. It sometimes takes considerable courage to scrap ruthlessly an expensive scene or act of costumes which is discovered during the penultimate rehearsals to be an embarrassment, and it needs courage tempered with tact and sympathy to amend an error of casting after rehearsals have shown that any particular members of the company is unsuited.

The producer, as I envisage the term, must also be actively conversant with the business side. He may, in this department, again delegate the detailed discussions to his business manager, but everything which involves expenditure must be under his hat. He must budget carefully under every head and pass all estimates for supplies. "Production" can only be a one-man job.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Jool Sayer's hilarious book, "Backstage Rax", has been transferred to the motion picture screen by the Fox studios. Described as a comedy satire on sporting racketeers who muscle in on big college football, the film comes to the King's Theatre on Wednesday. Victor McLaglen, heading the cast of comedians and comedienne, is said to have a far funnier role than those he had in "That Price of Glory" and "The Cock-Eyed World". Greta Nissen, platinum blonde beauty, is cast as the tenderloin sweetie of a sporting world racketeer who is bothered by a battling wife, a role played by Marjorie Beebe. Nell O'Day, musical comedy stage favorite, has a sprightly role as a newspaper girl with both beauty and brains.

The action of the picture takes place in Broadway night clubs, on the campuses and in the staid of many colleges from the Yale Howl to Soldiers' Field and thence out to the gridirons of the Pacific Coast.

"Midnight Mary"

The melodramatic career of a New York tenement girl who comes perilously close to the electric chair is depicted in "Midnight Mary," a new film from Thursday at the Queen's Theatre. The picture was filmed from an original story by Anita Loos and features Loretta Young, Ricardo Cortez, Franchot Tone, Andy Devine and Una Merkel.

The story centres on Mary Martin, a young girl who grows up in adverse circumstances and is finally induced to join a group of crooks who progress rapidly from petty larceny to robberies on the grand scale. She falls in love with a wealthy young attorney and tries desperately to start a new life on an honest footing. The gangster who has dominated her youth threatens to kill the man she loves, and against her will, Mary Martin is forced back into the underworld.

The pivotal role is played by Loretta Young, one of the most popular of the screen's younger stars. Ricardo Cortez plays the gangster who forces her to become a crook, and the romantic phases of the plot are handled by Miss Young and Franchot Tone, the much talked about newcomer who received outstanding notice for his work opposite Joan Crawford in "To-day We Live." Andy Devine and Una Merkel insure the picture of numerous comedy moments, and the group of supporting players include Frank Conroy, Warren Hymer, Ivan Simpson, Harold Huber, Sandy Roth, Martha Sleeper, Charles Grapewin, Halliwell Hobbes and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

"The Texas Bad Man" Strictly shooting, hard-fiddin' Tom Mix in the latest Universal romance of the West, "The Texas Bad Man" is now showing at the Central Theatre with villainous Fred Kohler, beautiful Lucille Powers, Willard Robertson and Tony also in the cast.

The story which pictures the Western star as a Texas Ranger, in the disguise of a bold, bad bandit, is an original one by Jack Cunningham. It packs thrilling stage coach hold-ups, desperate chases, daring rescues and the amazing antics of Tom Mix and his ever-faithful steed, Tony, into a whirling series of exciting situations, and shows the adventurous Texan at his very best.

Franklyn Farnum, famed star of the silent films, will be seen in a role of the cowboy drama, as will Joseph Girard, Edward Le Saint, Buck Moulton and Capt. C. E. Anderson of the Rangers.

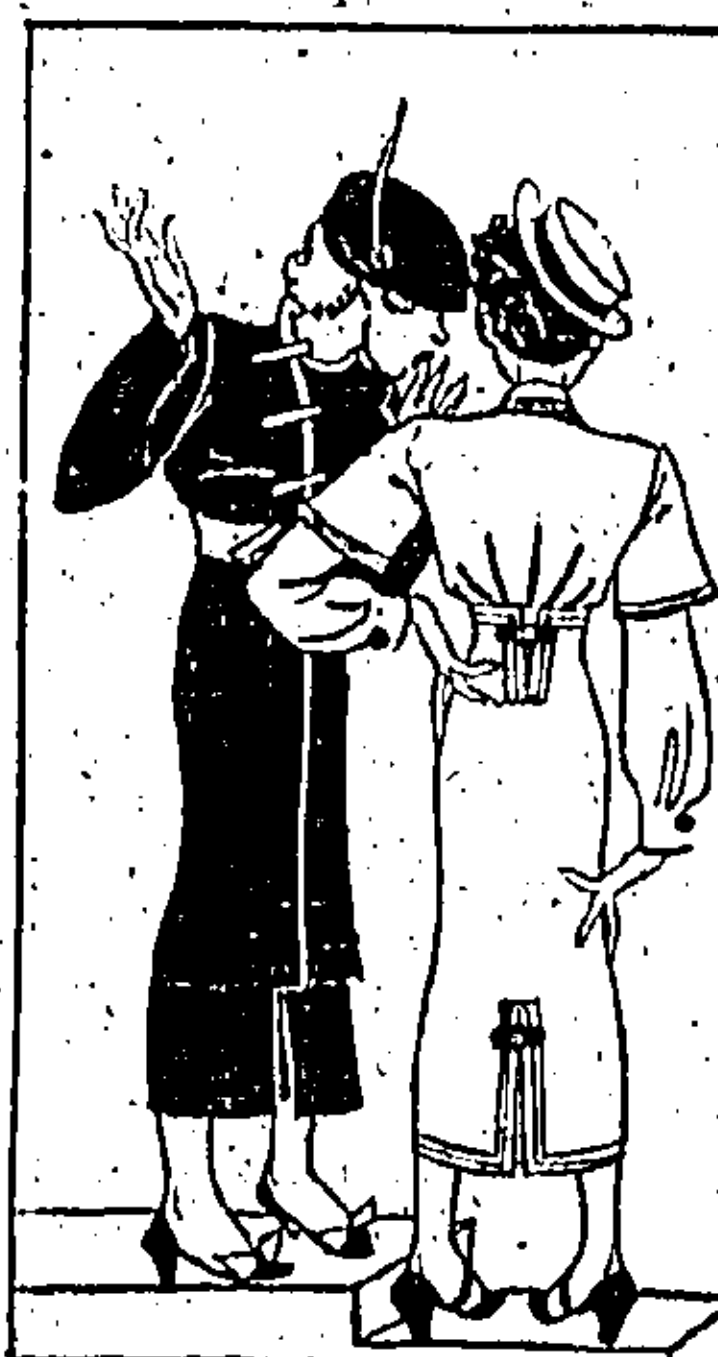

Edward Lucanille, who gave the screen "The Drake Case," "Lascen of the Rio Gando" and several other dramatic hits was the director of the photoplay.

"Sweepings" Some years ago the scapegrace son of a multi-millionaire became involved in a world love murder. The shock contributed greatly to his father's death.

A similar incident, with tragedy and pathos, has been incorporated into RKO-Radio film, "Sweepings" now screening at the King's Theatre. Lionel Barrymore enacts the father, and William Gargan, the dissolute son.

The production directed by John Cromwell, whirls through several decades and pictures the rise of a great monument of commerce out of Chicago's great fire and the crisis it meets when the time comes for its help to sliver their mettle.

Besides Gargan, Barrymore is supported by Alan Dinehart, Ninetta Sunderland, Gregory Ratoff, Gloria Stuart, George Meeker, Eric Linden, Lucien Littlefield, Helen Meek, Esther Muir and many other players.

A secret is the shortest distance between a girl and her best friend.

FORGETTING TO REMEMBER

If a good memory is a perennial joy, the ability to forget nonessentials is an equal blessing. It is altogether too easy to abuse a good memory by allowing trivial and unimportant matters become too deeply embedded in one's recollections. Habits of memory can be directed to a considerable extent by training oneself to dwell upon worth-while items in daily living and constantly to drop the ordinary and the inharmonious. Some persons can call the roll of every day's menu in their late vacations; some can remember a score or two of obsolete telephone numbers; others can repeat dimensions of old bridges to the last inch; and others yet recall the cost of every item of clothing acquired during the last two years, statistics as to the pre-war salaries of government officials, and the ages of distinguished strangers almost without end. The Newgate calendar lists nothing of this sort as an offence against the public welfare, and the mental pigeon-holing of such devitalized information passes for harmless diversion in many most respectable circles. Since remembering and forgetting are but reverse sides of the same mental mirror, it is only necessary to turn the glass around to expose the memory to impressions of real value and to free it from encumbrances. The cultivation of what one's Aunt Victoria used to call "a good forgettery" is an art deserving more consideration by those seeking fuller living. This can best be done by putting first things first. It means giving the right of way to recollections of beauty, stimulating interests and kindness in the living card index of the human heart; throwing aside the picture of low-tide mudflats for the recollection of the plunging surf at high water; discarding the memory of real or fancied slights in favour of helpful courtesies and friendly acts; seeking to understand fundamentals ahead of details; studying the trends of history before reaching broad conclusions built on isolated events; and recalling the noble harmonies of a great symphony in preference to the one false note from the wood winds in the midst of the tender andante that marred an otherwise perfect afternoon. The unusual makes news and its impact upon the memory creates far-reaching impressions; but in this swiftly changing era many facts lose their importance in a week. Fortunately the art of judicious forgetting improves with practice, and, remarkable to say, the reward is a better memory for the things that count most in this amazingly interesting world.

THE BLUDGEON

Germany's chief trouble today is that where her instincts are sound enough, her methods, in the eyes of world opinion, are wrong. Practically everything that Herr Hitler and his lieutenants have said about Germany's place in the sun would be readily endorsed by statesmen elsewhere, British, French, American or Polish, or of most every other nationality. But they jib at the bludgeon.

NATIONAL DEFENCE

In Italy, Signor Mussolini wields greater power and even more ruthlessly in certain respects than Herr Hitler, but his methods are different and he escapes internal trouble and external criticism. The fact that the resignation of General Balbo, recent hero of an historic mass flight, could even be rumoured as likely to be tendered at the will of Il Duce without causing some internal rumbling and grumbling, is significant. In fact, the move Signor Mussolini contemplates, the combination of the War Office, Air Ministry and Navy Office in one ministry, will be applauded. A similar step in Britain would be regarded as distinct progress, if we could be sure of a Mussolini Secundus at the head. It is almost absurd the way we go on now, with the Army and Navy chiefs fighting for their own to the last ditch—as they have been trained to do—with the very junior Air Force sadly neglected. A Ministry of National Defence, combining all three would rapidly sort them into proper places.

JEWISH BOYCOTT

The adoption by British Jewry of a resolution declaring a boycott of German goods and services is chiefly important as a public gesture. It may lead to some intensification of the campaign, but the damage to Germany's trade can hardly be made more severe than has already been accomplished by the Jews since the anti-Semitic nature of Nazi policy revealed itself as more than a passing phase. Without publicity of any kind, the Jews in England have quietly and methodically caused millions of pounds worth of German orders to be cancelled and an effective organization has been in existence for some considerable time past. Parallel organizations have been established in most countries on the Continent and powerful influences are also at work in the United States to see that every possible handicap is placed upon trade with Germany. Sunday's conference in London merely brought the activities of British Jewry into the open. There is nothing really new likely to follow upon the passing of the boycott resolution.

COUNTING THE COST

The weapon employed is one that few can have any real sympathy with, although it is the only one available to the Jewish leaders. One of the organizers has made it plain that the boycott is not directed against the German people, many of whom are suffering as severely as the Jews themselves under the Hitler regime, but against Nazi intolerance. Those acquainted with the Jews need no telling of their communal spirit, which means that the Jewish boycott of Germany will probably be more complete than any other people in the world could possibly make it. Financial considerations are not allowed to count as a factor when the rights and privileges of the race are challenged. Germany will be far more concerned in counting the cost.

RACIAL PRIDE

The Nazi glorification of the "Aryan race" is in all respects the most hurtful of its doctrines. Ethnological experts treat it as rather a joke and with such mockery as scientific men permit themselves invite the Nazi leaders to define an Aryan. Political leaders, treating of the realities, do not concern themselves with the fundamental weakness, but look askance at the attempt to puff up the pride of the German people and check Hitler's foreign policy at all points in self-defence. The Jews declare a boycott. In Germany, a new problem is raised by the creation of a community which is neither "Aryan" nor Jew, Germans with a Jewish ancestor at some time or other since the days of Napoleon. They number seven or eight millions. In some respects, their plight is worse than that of the Jews themselves. A wise instinct compels them to organize, and if Hitler makes examples of their leaders, they will still be there, ever a problem, strong enough to be a perpetual nuisance if nothing more. It looks as though the Nazi Chancellor has bitten off more than he can chew.

IS EARLY MARRIAGE WISE?

By PETER FORD

THE new divorce crop is a bumper one—and will produce the usual bumper crop of sweeping generalizations about marriage. A friend of mine figures in the undated list. She dined with me the other night—a pretty blonde, a year off thirty.

"The mistake I made," she confessed, "was to marry too young. Somebody ought to have stopped me. But father was delighted and mother thought Jack such a nice young man, and, of course, I had a crush on him—one of those call-love crushes!"

"I was seventeen! Now, I'm not the same person. All my ideas have changed. I didn't stop growing when I married. But Jack was twenty-five, and I supposed he had finished his developing process. Well, thank heavens there are no children!"

And she lit a cigarette—a pretty blonde, a year off thirty, and married for twelve years. I looked at her and thought that if she had waited another six or seven years, she would not now be taking up the time of the Divorce Court.

Marriage has not been reduced to an exact science. Probably it never will be, but the divorce lists would not be anything like so heavy as they are if men and women paid more serious attention to the age factor. And by age factor I do not necessarily mean age in terms of the calendar.

Some women are settled at twenty-five. Others are young, slim, adventurous, and ready for anything at forty. And it's the same with men, if not more so.

Theories about divorce are interesting; but the facts seem not to change. The marriages which most frequently hit the rocks are those contracted when the parties are really too young to know their own minds. The divorce statistics testify that the dangerous period of married life comes between the eighth and the tenth year. They also show that about one divorce in every eight occurs after twenty years of married life.

Twenty years! It sounds a long time. But if a man marries at twenty, he is only forty; and at forty a man can be astonishingly young. So can a woman—but not every woman.

On the occasion of his golden wedding the other day Sir Alfred James Rice-Oxley, the celebrated physician, pronounced himself a strong believer in early marriage.

William Morris Hughes married when he was twenty-two and scraping a living as a Welsh immigrant of two years' standing in Australia. He rose to become Prime Minister of Australia and a world-famous personality. An early marriage helped him.

Lord Baden-Powell was fifty-five when he married. His wife is thirty years younger than "B.P." Yet that is one of the most ideally successful marriages I know.

Guitry, the great French actor, so shrewd and so worldly wise, told me not long ago that the astute man marries a girl at least ten years younger than himself. He considers thirty a good age for a man to go forth on life's greatest adventure. Not earlier than that.

HOW I PRODUCE A PLAY

By CHARLES B. COCHRAN.
I AM often asked how I find it possible to produce so many plays and yet maintain that close personal supervision which I give to every department of my productions.

Although I had the training of an actor and stage manager before I took to the business side of the theatre and actually produced a play under my own management and stage direction over thirty-five years ago, I do not generally rehearse the actors.

In my view the word "production" applies to more than that conduct of rehearsals to which the phrase is often applied, to the exclusion of the promotion and coordination of all the other activities which result in giving the public a new theatrical entertainment.

GRADUAL DEVELOPMENT.

With musical plays and revues it is seldom a case of an author or composer bringing me a completed play or score for my consideration. Having conceived the idea of the entertainment I want to build up, I look round and select the author or authors and the composer or composers who, I feel, can give me what I want. The same method applies in commissioning an adaptation from a foreign language or from a book.

The title and subject are chosen and the development worked out usually as the result of conferences, stage by stage. As the play is written the music is composed and submitted for my approval.

Various suggestions are made to me with regard to the casting; but I usually start with a pretty clear idea of the principals I want, and all the actors and chorus have to be personally seen and approved by me finally.

The visual side of entertainment has a strong appeal to me, and I take great care in my selection of designers for the scenes and costumes. I suggest to them what I require and they go away, to return later with their detailed development of these general ideas.

FITTING PIECES TOGETHER.

A further stage is reached when a start is made at putting all these pieces together. Often with a big musical show there are several rehearsals going on in different places simultaneously. I move from one to the other, making notes and comments on all points that occur to me, and co-ordinating the work of the different stage departments—the musical director, the ballet-mistress, the wardrobe, and so on, as they work towards the completed production.

Often I suggest cuts or additions or the rewriting of parts of the script or score which appear to me necessary before or during the rehearsals.

In producing a new straight play for the first time I make up my mind who is the most suitable director to handle this particular play.

With my organization, it is possible to produce a number of plays at almost the same time. The chief requisites of the producing manager are imagination, courage, and ability to choose the right lieutenants to whom he can delegate a mass of detail, to keep track of what they are all doing, and to help them with encouragement and advice.

A difficulty with which I am sometimes faced is that of laying one's hands on the right stage director or the right cast just when I want them for a particular production.

The Very Idea!

IT IS RUMOURED.

BY ED. KELLY,
SCANDALMONGER

STRONG rumours have been current to the effect that Mr. J. S. Landolt won about $280,000 in the China National State Lottery. These rumours have been denied.

Strong rumours have also been current that Mr. Edward Kelly will pay his Hotel chit account before the end of the year. Interviewed yesterday, Mr. Kelly emphatically denied the rumours, which he characterized as scurrilous slander spread by unthinking people who were trying to beamish his name.

For some time past rumours have been current that the price of admission to St. Andrew's Ball will be reduced by fifty cents this year. Although these rumours have not been officially denied, the Committee has decided to charge the usual prices.

Strong rumours were current in the Colony yesterday that a typhoon was hovering around. These rumours have since been denied. Several persons were under the mistaken impression that the hoisting of a typhoon signal meant that a typhoon might occur.

Referring to the rumours current in Hongkong that a well-known Scotsman found a ten cent piece last week Robert Whittier when interviewed this morning wanted to know who he was.

WINTRY SPORT

It's great to think, those cooler days of springing out of bed; of sprinting through the morning haze, and then (your garments shed) of diving in the salty sea till glowing in each vein, and you recall you've still to shave, and sprint for home again. It's great, we say, to think of this—all this—when snug in bed, refusing to forsake its bliss for what the ice-bergs said than coddling ways were better far. Though bedtime hours must end, we wonder if these ice-bergs are the fools that they pretend!

WANG IN SHANGHAI

C. T. WANG MENTIONED FOR F.O.

NEW ARRIVALS

Shanghai, Nov. 7. Mr. Wang Ching-wei is expected here from Nanking. It is said he will call on Mr. T. V. Soong to urge him to return to Nanking.

But Mr. Wang's movements synchronise with the appearance at Nanking of Messrs. Chang Ching-kiang and Li Shih-tsang, veteran political leaders, arousing suspicion that the cabinet of the Nanking Government might receive a shake up in the near future.—Central News.

NANKING RUMOURS.

Nanking, Nov. 5. Rumours of impending reshuffling of the Nanking Cabinet still continue to circulate here. The evening newspapers to-night gave great prominence to the probable appointment of Dr. C. T. Wang, as Foreign Minister. Mr. Chu Kia-hun, the present Minister of Communications to be Chairman of Chekiang and Gen. Lu T'ing, the present Chekiang Chairman, as Garrison Commander of Woosung and Shanghai.

General Hung Fu is also mentioned as a likely Foreign Minister, but it is believed that it is extremely unlikely that Gen. Huang will accept the appointment. Gen. Huang Fu is at present Chairman of the Peking Political Council and has been very active in connexion with recent Sino-Japanese negotiations.—Reuter.

MORE MOTORING OFFENCES

UNREPORTED ACCIDENTS BEFORE MAGISTRATE

The drivers of several motor vehicles were summoned before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, some with having failed to report accidents and another with failing to stop after an accident.

Foo Wing, a lorry driver, was fined $10 for failing to stop after colliding with a Chinese in Pokfulam Road.

Sergeant Youe said defendant was proceeding up Pokfulam Road towards the University, and when passing a bus coming in the opposite direction, he scraped against the side of the bus, and also knocked down a coolie walking on the footpath. The coolie and the bus driver reported the accident, but the defendant did not.

COLLISION IN STUBBS ROAD.

A collision in Stubbs Road on October 15, when a public car, driven by Yue Lok, collided with a private car, had a sequel when Yue was summoned for having failed to report an accident and negligent driving, and was fined $10 on the first summons, and $15 on the second.

Sergeant Clarke said that the private car was being driven up Stubbs Road, and the driver signalled to the public car to overtake. The defendant did so, but kept alongside the private car for a distance of about fifty yards, and then cut in front of it, colliding with the mudguard of the private car. Defendant did not report the accident.

CAINE ROAD ACCIDENT.

Wong Lu, a bus driver, was fined $10 for having failed to report an accident in Caine Road.

Sergeant Clarke said that bus knocked down a lady, who was admitted to hospital with a broken arm.

EXCESSIVE SPEED.

Lam Shu-shan, a public car driver, was fined $25 for excessive speed in Seymour Road, when he was alleged to have driven about 35 miles an hour, and Li Sze, a private car driver, was fined $10 for having driven at 25 miles an hour in Whitfield.

Mr. Sandro Sandri, special envoy of the Popolo d'Italia which is the newspaper of the Fascist Revolution and the organ of Signor Mussolini is passing through Hongkong. Mr. Sandro Sandri went through the war with the rank of Captain in the Italian Army. He is now in China with the special mission of studying and writing about Chinese affairs.

STORY OF A LOAN

but the defendants did not sign it and when pressed told him that he was not in fact a partner of the buffet.

AGREEMENT MADE.

They later made an agreement to refund his $3,000 in a fortnight and thereafter to pay him $50 a month so long as they were interested in the business. Smith went to America for a short time but before he went he knew of the circumstances and dispute and left his partner with full authority to settle the matter. Two instalments of $50 under the agreement were paid when Smith returned, and with his knowledge.

Plaintiff in evidence said he and defendant nearly came to blows when they refused to meet his solicitor to draw up an agreement of partnership. The first proposition made to him was that he should lend $3,000 and receive it back with $3,000 interest but that he refused. The partners had no money themselves when McKee approached him and he had to provide the money for food for the first fortnight. He was in fact the sole financier of the business.

$50 A MONTH FOR LIFE.

His Lordship: The agreement might amount to $50 a month for life?

Witness: Yes.

Mr. Filomeno Eca de Silva, manager of the Casanova Dancing Academy, appeared on subpoena and gave evidence that he was a friend both to Smith and plaintiff. He said he could throw little light on the dispute, between them.

Defendant said plaintiff lost faith in the business and wanted his money back after a few weeks. Witness said he would have to go to America to raise the money and that he would pay Silva $50 a month while he was using the $3,000. When he returned from America he found the business in such a state that he bought McKee out and became himself the sole proprietor.

PRINCIPAL REPAID.

Cross-examined, Smith said he was aware of an agreement between McKee and Silva to pay the latter $50 a month while they were interested in the business but he was never a party to that agreement himself and thought that the clause was a mistake. He had not seen the agreement in writing until he was shown it in court. He found on his return from America that McKee had repaid Silva the $3,000 out of the business and when a payment of $100 was later made to Silva by McKee, witness thought it was arrears of interest that were being paid and not arrears under the agreement.

At this point His Lordship said he did not believe Smith's evidence and that judgment would be given for plaintiff with costs.

In reply to Mr. Silva's application for costs on a high scale, Mr. Kemble said he objected to this as McKee's actions towards Smith amounted almost to fraud. The written agreement might never have been shown by him to Smith.

Costs on the ordinary scale were allowed to plaintiff.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

THE WORLD IS AN OLD WOMAN THAT MISTAKES ANY GILT PARTING FOR A GOLD COIN.—Carlyle.

A painter's apprentice was badly burnt about the hand yesterday when he touched a live electric wire at the Kwong Shing Hing yard at Cheung-shawan. The wire had been blown down by the gale.

A lecture to the Hongkong University Medical Society by Dr. K. Mackenzie on "The Heat-Recent Studies of its Dynamics and Energy Requirements" will be given at the Union Assembly Room to-morrow afternoon at 6.15, and not to-day, as previously stated.

The French River Gunboat Argus arrived here to-day from the West River. H.M. Submarines are expected to arrive to-morrow with the escort of the Pandora and the parent ship, H.M.S. Medway, which will follow on Thursday. H.M.S. Cumberland is due from the north on Tuesday next.

TAMMANY TIGER CAGED?

HEAVY BETTING

New York, Nov. 6. Wall Street is wagering heavily on what promises to be one of the noisiest and busiest municipal election for many years.

The candidates for the Mayoralty are Mr. La Guardia, famous Congress fighter, Mr. McKee, the Independent candidate, and Mr. O'Brien, the present Mayor, who is the nominee of Tammany Hall.

The appearance in the field of both Mr. O'Brien and Mr. McKee has split the vote on which the Tammany candidate would normally be able to depend, with the result that Mr. La Guardia is a hot favourite for the Mayoralty.

Two and a half to one is given against Tammany and the Independent candidate, McKee, who is tacitly supported by the White House, and four to one against the present Mayor.

LA GUARDIAS. A good deal of betting is being done, although the amounts are below those of previous years.

Excitement is intense throughout the city. The feature of the polling will be the presence of "fusioners" composed of prize-fighters, professional athletes and young Society men, recruited by Mr. La Guardia to guard the polling station and to prevent intimidation.

BRITISH WAR DEBT STATEMENT

To Be Issued As White Paper To-day

London, Nov. 6. The Cabinet which met this afternoon dealt mainly with the business before Parliament which re-assembles to-morrow. The House of Commons will devote most of its first day to a debate on Disarmament, during which a full statement will be made by the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon.

Before the debate begins, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain will give an account of the recent War Debt conversations in Washington and a White Paper regarding them will be issued immediately afterwards.

YOUNG MARSHAL TO RETURN?

BRITISH ADVISER IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Nov. 7. Considerable interest has been aroused by the return to China of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's British adviser, Mr. Donald, who arrived in Shanghai yesterday. He called on Mr. T. V. Soong at the latter's residence immediately after his arrival.

Mr. Donald told pressmen that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang was not certain when he would return.

ONLY THREE CASES

MAGISTRATE'S LIGHT MORNING

Only three cases came before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning, one of which concerned another theft from the old Hongkong Bank site.

Lo Fai, 40, with a previous conviction for a similar offence, was fined $75 or six weeks for stealing a quantity of iron piping from the Bank site. He was not employed there, it was stated.

The other two cases concerned a Hoklo charged with driving a ricksha without a licence; he was fined $1, while a caution was administered to a Chinese woman for hawking without a licence.

The Court rose within ten minutes.

MOST CRITICAL TIME SINCE MARCH

Washington Observers on Outlook

New York, Nov. 6. The market was very dull to-day due in part no doubt to the fact that Election Day occurs to-morrow. Stocks in general drifted fractionally lower but gold and silver shares moved against the trend into higher ground.

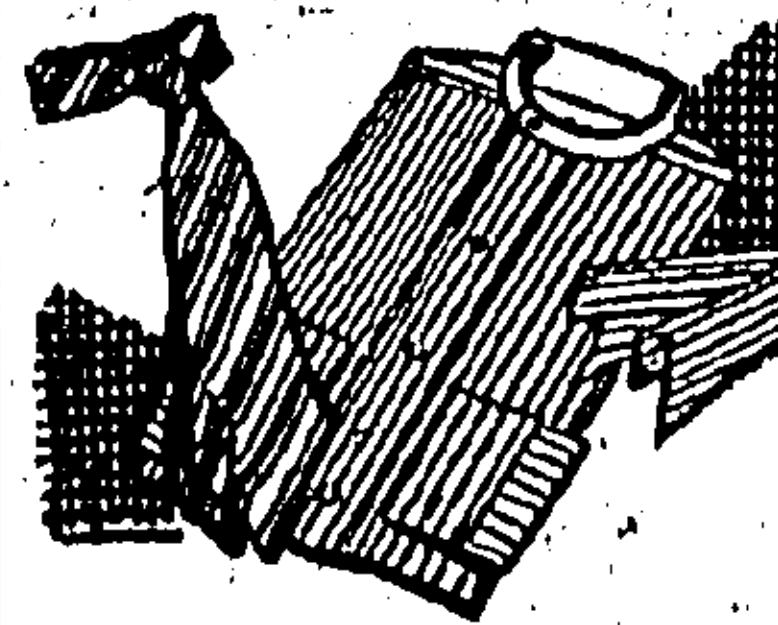

Commodities were off with the exception of silver which owing to rumours that the Administration will take some action to bring the white metal into a more favourable relation with bar-gold, reached its high for the year. Feeling among many that the government intends to "do something" for this metal has been strong in speculative circles for the last two weeks and its price has in that period risen about 4½ cents.

Competent Washington observers feel that the present is the most critical time since last March and general Washington comment is sceptical of the success of the gold buying plan.

They feel that this plan may crystallize sentiment for sound money which in turn will combat inflationary sentiment and propaganda. In spite of all this they expect business to improve gradually from its present lull.

OFFICIALS

OPEN TO PUBLIC

An official statement regarding the Kwanti race meetings for this winter has been made by the Secretaries of the Fanling Race and Hunt Club in the following letter.

(To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.)
Sir,—There appears to be some uncertainty in the minds of the public concerning the activities of the Fanling Hunt and Race Club for the coming season. Because of this we should be obliged if you will publish this letter giving a statement of the following facts:

(a) Race Meetings open to the general public will be conducted at Kwan Ti and the following dates have been selected:
1933: December 31.
1934: January 28, February 18, March 11, April 8.
The Pari Mutual and Cash Sweepstake will be run as in the past.
(b) The "St. John's Cup Cash Sweepstake" for which tickets are now being sold will be held as planned and is to be decided for by a race run for the "St. John's Cup" on December 31.
(c) The "Hunters' Arms" will be in use exactly as in former years.

HARDCOURT TENNISCHAMPIONSHIP IN SHANGHAISuccesses for Khoo,
Lum and Cheng

The Hardcourt Tennis Championship of Shanghai started on the Cercle Sportif Courts last week with 17 matches in the various sections being decided.

Only two of the seven matches played in the Men's Singles championship went to three sets. Gordon Lum, H. Collaco, C. C. Squires and C. C. Cheng had no difficulty in entering the second round in two straight sets. Li. Rixey triumphed over J. Loonis in three sets, as did Kirkeby over Brunner.

Only one match was played in the Men's Doubles series with Khoo Hooi-hye partnered by D. Cheng entering the next round by an easy victory over Li. Rixey and Sult. The latter couple were handicapped due to an injury to Brunner.

FAVOURITES WIN.

In the Mixed Doubles two matches were played and two were forfeited. The favoured couples entering the second round—Mrs. Fischer partnered by A. G. Meise, Miss T. Collaco and H. Collaco, Mme. Mendmore and Khoo Hooi-hye, and Mrs. Dvorjatz partnered by Benavitch.

Two walk-overs were given in the Women's Singles, Mrs. Rodger and Mrs. Service forfeiting to Mrs. Lum and Mrs. Cato respectively. Two walk-overs were also given in the Women's Doubles series.

WIGHTMAN CUP PLAYERS MAY VISIT
HONGKONGMISS ROUND &
MISS HEELEYNOW SAID TO BE IN JAPANAUSTRALIA AS DESTINATION

Said to have Australia as their destination, Miss Dorothy Round and Miss Mary Heeley, two members of the British Wightman Cup team are reported to be in Japan, where they will in all probability play exhibition matches.

Although it has not yet been confirmed, it is more than likely that the two players will pass through Hongkong some time this month, in which case it can be safely believed that the Lawn Tennis Association will make every effort to arrange for their appearance here.

So far as is known the L.T.A. has not yet taken any steps in this direction.

AMERICAN SUCCESSES.

Miss Round and Miss Heeley enjoyed several successes in America this year, Miss Round winning the Pacific South-West Championship, by beating Miss Alice Marble in the final 6-2, 6-2.

The two girls also reached the final of the women's doubles, but were defeated by Miss Ryan and Miss Marble in straight sets, whilst Miss Round figured in the mixed doubles final with Perry, but was beaten by Ellsworth Vines and Miss Ryan.

HOCKEY TEAMS

SportsmenWRIGHT TO GIVE UP FOOTBALL

(By "Veritas").

Illness has been claiming as victims several prominent local sportsmen.

H. D. Rumjahn, the well known tennis player is slowly recovering from a severe bout of malaria, but is not likely to be seen on the courts for some little time.

His cousin, Sirdar, the Colony's champion, is also being kept off the tennis court with a bad knee which is gradually yielding to treatment. Sirdar, however, is definitely making progress and hopes to take up the racket again before the end of this month.

Charles Wright, who was to have had his first season in local league football this winter, has been forced to give up the idea of playing again this year.

Another attack of malaria has left him with no alternative. Wright played in one league game only for the Club, and was then suffering from the effects of malaria.

FORMER L.T.A. SECRETARY.

His host of friends have learnt with concern of the serious illness which attacked Mr. C. P. F. James, former Hon. Secretary of the Lawn Tennis Association and a present member of the Interport Selection Committee.

Last week Mr. James had to undergo an operation, but reassuring news has since been given, and he is making satisfactory progress.

Kowloon on Saturday welcomed back Jones, their new capture this season who has been ill for nearly three weeks, although he is still far from his usual self. He played at inside left and was obviously still suffering from the effects of his illness.

presented by the following:
R.H. Wong; F. Broadbridge and E.H.P. White; J.T.K. Ghehrst, A.E.P. Guest, and A.B. Hanson; E. MacNider, A.S. Bliss, N.A.E. Mackay, E.F. Fincher and M. Well.

The following will represent the Radio: Man Singh; Parduman Singh; J. S. Grewal; Jagreet Singh. M. H. Hassan, Mohinder Singh; Atar Singh, Garbachee Singh, Awtar Singh, Kalwant Singh, F. A. Kemp (Captain).

DRAMATIC KNOCK OUT BLOW

HOW JOCK McAVOY RETAINED MIDDLEWEIGHT

A knock-out, dramatic in its suddenness and totally unexpected, enabled Jock McAvoy, the middleweight champion of Rochdale, to keep his title and Lonsdale Belt at Belle Vue, Manchester, last month.

He brought his challenger, Archie Sexton, of London, sprawling face downwards in the tenth round with an uppercut which threatened to tear his head from his shoulders, yet for nine rounds the champion, though he was always winning the fight, had not placed a single punch on Sexton which really troubled him.

It was a remarkable finish to a contest which was one of the poorest and duller ever given a championship label. After a few rounds the crowd were shouting derisively at the efforts of the two men, and there was also considerable booing. But McAvoy's storming finish had everyone on his feet ready to cheer and forgive.

CHAMPION SHAKEN.

At the start of the tenth round Sexton, for the first time in the battle, showed a trace of fire. He stopped from his corner, shot a left-hand point towards the head, and followed immediately with a crashing right on McAvoy's jaw.

The champion, taken completely unaware, was visibly shaken, but the punch had exactly the opposite effect to that intended. It roused McAvoy as nothing had done previously. Stunned to action, he walked into his challenger, hit him on the chin with an uppercut that must have rattled his teeth, and then proceeded to pound him all over the place.

BELAUGHED.

The crowd leapt as one man to his feet, yelling for McAvoy to finish it—and finish it he did like a thorough workman. Sexton, still dazed from the thump on his chin, his strength slipping, from him as a result of McAvoy's vigorous body onslaught, was like a man caught in a blizzard and unable to protect himself.

He hung limply on the ropes while McAvoy belaboured him with blows from all angles. His hands dropped feebly to his sides, and the champion, taking his aim with all the ease of a Malay marksmen, rammed home the right uppercut which finished the fight.

Sexton hit the floor with such a bang that the counting of the seconds was a mere formality. He had to be dragged to his corner, and it needed half a bucket of water to bring him round.

McAvoy's form in the final round wiped out many of his earlier failings, but the truth is that his display for nine rounds was never out of the second class. He had little to boast and took a long time about it.

"I just don't know what happened to me," declared Sexton after-

LARWOOD'S FOOT

AN OPERATION IN LONDON

London, Oct. 16.
Harold Larwood, the Nottingham fast bowler, underwent a foot operation to-day at a London nursing home.

The operation was performed by the famous orthopaedic surgeon, Mr. W. R. Bristol, who with Lord Moynihan and Mr. R. G. Hogarth, the Nottingham specialist, made an examination of Larwood's foot after his return from Australia.

Mr. Hogarth has reported that the foot has not yielded to the rest treatment prescribed, and as there was some conflict of opinion in regard to the real nature of the injury an exploratory operation was the only course left.

THIS MORNINGMATCH TO STARTWICKET VERY HEAVYOPENING DELAYED
UNTIL 1.15 P.M."We'll Do Our Best"—
Owen-Hughes

A shy sun, peeping through the clouds, greeted the Interport cricketers this morning, and made possible a decision to start the match between Malaya and Hongkong at 1.15 this afternoon.

Although it is rapidly drying, the wicket is extremely heavy, and an inspection this morning by Owen-Hughes and R. N. Hamilton caused them to suspend opening of play until 1.15.

By that time the wicket will be in a good enough condition to raise the curtain on the 1933 Triangular Interport series. If the sun continues, the pitch is expected to become rather difficult this afternoon, and whoever wins the toss, will have to exercise considerable amount of thought in deciding whether to bat or field first.

"WE'LL DO OUR BEST."

Interviewed in the Cricket Club pavilion this morning, Owen-Hughes, the Hongkong captain was asked what he thought of the local team's chances of winning. He replied:

"I honestly don't know. We'll do our best. That's all I can tell you."

R. N. Hamilton, the Malayan skipper preferred to not express any opinion in this direction. The teams are:

In His SleepCRAWFORD ON HIS U.S. BREAKDOWN

Sydney, Oct. 10.
J. H. Crawford, the Wimbledon Australian, and French lawn tennis champion, arriving here to-day, said that his breakdown in America (where he was defeated 3-6, 13-11, 6-4, 6-0, 1-6 by F. J. Perry last month in the final round of the American National Lawn Tennis Championship at Forest Hills, New York) was due to nervous strain after a long tour. He was unable to rest properly. "As soon as I dozed off my arms began to move backwards and forwards as in tennis," he said. "I played tennis in my sleep, and immediately woke."

"I did not get more than an hour's fitful rest each night. On the day I broke up after the third set I have not the slightest recollection of the remaining two sets I played."

Crawford added that he was afterwards compelled to take drugs to induce sleep. He expects to be quite fit for the matches with the Englishmen who are to play in the Australian championships early next year, though by doctor's orders he must temporarily confine himself to doubles.

RIDLEY'S DECIDING GOAL

LINCOLNS DEFEAT CANTON XI

SMART FOOTBALL

Over 4,000 persons saw the Lincoln football team of Hongkong win the friendly match from the Intang Military Academy cadets at the East Parade Grounds on Sunday.

The ball travelled swiftly from one end of the field to the other during the first half of the match without either side scoring.

Shortly after the beginning of the second half, the visitors scored a goal. The local team tried hard to even the score but failed to break through the defence of the Lincolns, with several fruitless long shots.

Towards the end of the game, one of the cadets' fullbacks was injured and the cadets had to continue with ten men. They resorted to the defensive, and only the splendid work of the goal-keeper prevented more goals from being scored by the visitors.

When the match ended, the score stood 1-0 in favour of the Lincoln Regiment.

Among the spectators were Gen. Tao Yick-hin, vice president of the Intang Military Academy, Col. Liang Chik-wai, Counsellor to the Military Headquarters, Col. Art Lin, Chief of staff to the Canton Air Force. Members of the British consulate in Shamen were also present.

the champion miss a good deal he was never doing anything to put himself ahead.

FREE FROM RISK.

The Londoner's leads carried so little behind them that McAvoy treated them almost with levity. Never can a boxer have found attacking so free from risk as did McAvoy, and he was always scoring at a steady pace.

His best blow was a right to the short ribs. His left he used chiefly to get his distance, except when he cornered Sexton, which was often. Then he let him have it with a vengeance.

But there was far too much holding and too much more sparing for the fight to be a good one.

Still, it needs two to make a battle, and Sexton was never able to make up his mind to turn aggressor.

I was terribly disappointed in him. So was everyone else. It is sad to see a man so afflicted by nerves that he cannot give of his best.—Geoffrey Simpson.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 600,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: The market was very dull and generally downward with the exception of the gold, silver and traction stocks. Silver reached the year's high of forty-one and half cents per ounce due to continued rumours that the Administration will take some action to bring silver to a more favourable ratio with bar gold. The Street is discussing the possibility of fifty cent silver. Gold stocks were disturbed owing to talk that gold producers tax may be instituted. American Iron and Steel Institute reported steel at 25.2% of capacity. The Stock Exchange, all New York Markets and banks will be closed on Tuesday due to Election Day. There will be no foreign-exchange. Our New York Office Cable change. (This morning).

Stocks: The market moved in a meaningless manner and pending new developments, irregularity is likely to prevail. Wheat: Buyers were cautious. There were pronounced advances in the Liverpool market which brought realizing sales. Statistics, crop news and the weather are bullish. Buy on declines. Cotton: The market declined largely due to December liquidation. The ten cent loan scheme more popular and adding holding movement and basis reported higher, but general uncertainty characterizes market operations. Silver: The market closed very strong on speculative buying.

OFF AMERICAN COAST

Life and adventure on the Hongkong yacht "Tai-moshan" manned by five naval officers from the China Squadron and now making her way down the western coast of the United States, is breezily described in a letter received from Lieut. Commander Sherwood, R.N., one of the adventurers.

They expect to reach Panama by Christmas. Lt. Commander Sherwood's letter follows:

ENCOUNTER WITH WHALES.

Aboard the Yacht "Tai-Mo-Shan," October 6.
"At the moment of writing—6.30 a.m.—we had expected to be entering the 'Golden Gate,' the entrance into San Francisco. Actually we are in thick fog—no wind, and narrowly being missed by all of the busy traffic wending its way in and out of the harbour! When we left Japan we made our way direct from Northern Japan up to the Aleutian Islands as we were not allowed to call in at the Kuriles. It was a long trip as we experienced a lot of fog and light winds. We did not sight a ship for the whole of the last two days. On the first occasion of sighting them George got frightfully excited not knowing what they were and we pulled his leg merrily. They came very close to the boat and one really began to wonder what would happen should they choose to come up under her."

TYPHOON WEATHERED.

THE 50th INHABITANT.

"Attu was a funny little place with only 49 inhabitants when we arrived, a 50th arriving next day so we can scarcely be held responsible though the natives were going to christen it 'Tai-Mo-Shan.' There were huge hills all round with snow still on them and the air was like champagne. We did some sea fishing which was absurdly easy as no bait was necessary—merely a line with a weight and three hooks. We caught a lot of cod of about 24 lbs. and as many herrings as we wanted. I had read in a book about that part of the world that puffins had been used in a stew by the writer when shipwrecked on one of the islands. I got the others to shoot some as there were hundreds, and they brought me back half a dozen. I tried plucking them, having first put the things into a bucket of warm water as taught me at the Peninsula; but even then the feathers would not come out."

PTOMAINES!

A native then showed me their method of skinning them by turning them inside out. I found the breasts excellent and we had some good stews out of them. I was not so successful, however, with some of the fish! We had been having a lot of the latter and I think they all wondered how I managed to dish them up nice and brown. (I had bought a large tin of breadcrumbs at Yokohama). One day I used some which had been hanging over the side for some time and next day we were all doubled up, including the doctor, who administered a bomb to each of us and we recovered. That has been the one and only occasion on which Crooks could not have been blamed!"

BECALMED.

"After Attu we went up into the Bering Sea which is only free of ice for two or three months of the year. It was jolly cold at night. It is the great breeding place for fur-seals. We saw several though we did not stop at any more of the Aleutian Islands until we reached Dutch Harbour, Alaska. This is only a small place but some American ships were in and so we were able to trim our beards, etc. You never saw such a mess as we had hanging down from our faces."

VICTORIA GREETING.

"We had a wonderful reception at Victoria and had invitations every day; the Canadian Navy put us up. Francis and Salt went up to Banff in the Rockies, Ryder to Vancouver, but the Doctor and myself stayed at Victoria where I thoroughly enjoyed myself. Goodness knows what awaits us when the fog clears as we are only just outside San Francisco and they made an awful fuss in the Canadian papers so I don't know what the Yank ones are like."

COOKING ADVENTURES.

"I found that after a bit I could cook simple meals fairly well though it took me some time to get used to the motion especially as I suffer from sea-sickness. Now I can cook all sorts of puddings, pastries, etc., in addition to fish, meats, stews, etc. Mark you, I do not think I would have remained sane had I kept on with the original stoves. Trying to pump them up with the boat at an angle, and skidding about on a deck slimy with a mixture of paraffin, seawater and cooking fat, would in the end have got me down. They leaked steadily and no solder would stick it for long. The oven was never satisfactory. Now I am absolutely fine. I came across a gas at Victoria which is used a lot over here called 'Rock Gas.' No smell, dirt and a better heat than the Primus. We don't even have to have a funnel up to the deck. I have a simple two-burner range and portable oven which I put over one of the burners for baking. Everything works beautifully merely by turning on a tap. I can cook everything in half the time."

A DAY'S MENU.

"Here is our actual menu for yesterday which is not too bad is it?—Breakfast.—Porridge, scrambled eggs and beans, coffee, french bread. Lunch.—Cold lobster, salad with lettuce and tomatoes, and German sausages. Supper (hot).—Chicken, bacon, pork sausages, bread sauce, mashed potatoes, kidney beans (fresh), followed by one large and one small apple tart and custard, and washes down by a brew of coffee!"

"I think the others are pleased with the results. They are certainly getting quite fat."

"Here is a rough programme—about four days stay at San Francisco, San Pedro, San Diego, Magdalena Bay (Mexico), and then we have a long trip down to the Galapagos Islands. I wish I knew how to kill a turtle as there are lots there but you can think of me running about the islands holding out a lump of cheese, with a knife in the other ready to lop their heads off! Were you pulling my leg or not? "

SHIP LOSES ANCHOR.

The Danish vessel Jatlandia lost a five ton anchor and two 'atoms of chain as she was passing outward through Lyemun Pass this morning just off Pak Sha Wan Point. The depth at this point is stated to be 19 fathoms.

Lt. Commr. M. Sherwood, R.N., "chief cook and bottle washer" of the yacht, Tai-mo-shan.

MALAYA COLLAPSE IN THE FIRST INTERPORT

length to save himself from being run out.

GOODWIN HURT.

At this stage, Goodwin had to leave the field owing to a sprain in his left leg, but he came back after a rub-down.

Pearce took over the bowling and bowled right arm over the wicket to Alvis, his first over being a "maiden." In his second over, he bowled round the wicket, and after giving away a single, he bowled Croome neck and crop with his last ball.

Croome was at the wicket for 20 minutes for his six runs. He straight drove Garthwaite for a four and scored two singles. 46 for 5 wickets.

Garthwaite was inclined to be too well up with his deliveries, and did not appear to be dangerous. He was no-balled twice. With a single off Garthwaite, Alvis sent up the 50 after 65 minutes play.

A STAND.

Pearce had five men on the leg side and tried to tempt Alvis to hit out, but the youngster was not having any.

At exactly 2.30 p.m., Redmond went on for Garthwaite, and Alvis had bad luck in not being able to score through Pearce's brilliant fielding at cover point. He smacked every one hard, but Pearce was always there.

Redmond was bowling short, and was lucky to have a maiden recorded to him.

Hongkong was fielding wonderfully well and nothing was given away.

Jonklass, who had joined Alvis, batted stolidly and was not taking any chances.

PEARCE BOWLING WELL.

Bowling a perfect length, Pearce was difficult to play, and although he had met with no further success, he kept the runs down.

At 2.38 p.m., 60 was hoisted, through a good hit by Alvis, who reached double figures after batting for 30 minutes.

The rate of scoring increased as the batsmen settled down. Jonklass also reached double figures with a cut through the slips off Pearce for a two. Seventy was reached at 2.45 p.m.

FRANCO-BRAZIL TARIFF WAR

INSTALMENT OF LOAN DELAYED

The Brazilian Government has instructed the London bankers, Messrs. Rothschild & Son, according to cables received from Rio de Janeiro, to delay payment to France of the instalment repayment of Brazil's loan. It is hoped that this drastic action will induce the French Government to moderate its action in interfering with the existing commercial relations of the two countries. It is also possible, the Brazilian authorities believe, that the tariff concessions on both sides may lead to an agreement.

BULGARIA TO JOIN LITTLE ENTENTE?

The improvement of relations between Bulgaria and Yugoslavia and the question of Bulgaria's eventually joining the Little Entente, formed the principal topics of the conversations last week between the sovereigns and statesmen of Bulgaria and of Spain at their meeting on the Danube, according to a Sofia dispatch. The King and Queen of Bulgaria are expected to travel to Belgrade shortly to return King Alexander's visit to Euxinograd Castle.

NATIONAL PARTY

HINT OF CHANGES IN BRITAIN

London, Nov. 6.
It is understood on good authority that there are those among the Ministry who are studying with concern the lesson of the East Fulham by-election, in which the Conservatives, fighting without allies, were signally defeated.

It is reported that there are certain Ministers, among whom is the Prime Minister himself, who are contemplating the formation of a National Party to replace the present Conservative control.

This idea is supported by the followers of Sir John Simon, the National Labourites, and many Conservatives, but there would be a considerable independent Conservative movement even were the formation of a National Party a reality, observers believe.—Router.

Mr. MacDonald's Statement.

Talk of the formation of a new National Party was given strength by a luncheon given by the National Labour Committee to-day, at which the principal guests were Mr. MacDonald, Mr. Baldwin and Sir John Simon.

Three hundred guests attended altogether, and listened to a speech by the Prime Minister.

Mr. MacDonald said that Mr. Baldwin and Sir John Simon and himself were separated in political ideas but united in their object.

The National Government was a combination which none of them would attempt to break, he said, as long as there was a national need for its continuance.

The National Government, he added, was the greatest steady influence to be found in the whole world, both in trade and conference.

Referring to the attacks against the Government he said it was upon the very success of the Government that the criticisms had been cast. He admitted that the National Government had not issued enough propaganda. They must rectify that omission, he declared. A National Government requires national propaganda.

Sees Transformation.

Sir John Simon, following, said that a transformation was occurring in the British mind on the subject of party politics. It should be noted that the old dividing controversies were dead because each party had made its contribution to the common national position, he said. He concluded that the present threat to British parliamentary institutions was one of dictatorship; a danger from which a national combination of parties must save Great Britain.

Mr. Baldwin declared that the National Government was a combination for its duration. But it was not bothering about its duration as it was a long time before there was any general election, and there was a great deal to be done.

Great Britain was in an incomparably better position than she was two years ago. He had never been ruffled by by-elections, he said. They were wrestling with an entire new set of problems which compelled them to branch out in an entirely new direction.—Router.

Significant Figures.

Labour won the East Fulham by-election handsily, with a majority of 4,840. Mr. J. C. Wilmot, the Labour candidate, polled 17,790 against Mr. W. J. Waldron, Conservative, who polled 12,950. East Fulham was a Conservative seat at the last election, when Sir K. Vaughan-Morgan polled 23,493, against a majority of 14,621 against the two Labour candidates.

The significance of the swing to Labour in the borough elections recently has been noted in Government circles.

A Roman Bird Sanctuary

CHILDREN FREE 1,000 SONGSTERS

Rome, Oct. 5.
The trees and foliage of the Borghese Gardens—the Hyde Park of Rome—to-day sheltered a thousand birds which have been liberated in the name of St. Francis of Assisi. The birds were set free yesterday on the feast day of the Saint, and the gardens were officially declared a bird sanctuary.

The event was carried out with picturesque ceremony. Two companies of Black Shirt boys and girl units were paraded in the Gardens in a hollow square around hundreds of cages containing birds which had been confiscated from poachers who had trapped them to sell them as song birds or as decoys.

After a short lecture on bird lore, followed by the recitation of St. Francis's "In praise of Birds" from his "Hymn to Creation," the children, one by one, stepped forward to open the doors of the assembled cages.

Gradually the surrounding trees became alive with the birds preening their feathers and fluttering about in their new-found freedom.

Although of various species, the birds all kept together in a twittering congregation for nearly half an hour, and then, as with common consent, they took wing together and flew off to all parts of the great park. Artificial nests have been erected at many points.

Dynastic control over the unaring, marketing, and treatment of birds all over Italy is now in force; and bird sanctuaries similar to those of Capri and the Borghese Gardens are to be established along the migratory route of the Peninsula.

POUND SHOWING STRENGTH.

FRANC WEAKENED BY POLITICS

London, Nov. 6.
The feature of to-day's Exchange is the strength of sterling. The U. S. dollar is now above parity, and is quoted at $4.87½ against the pound. The closing price on Saturday was $4.85½.

The French franc also weakened to-day, falling off from 80.18 to 80.37, owing to the increasing doubts that M. Sarraut, the new leader of the Government, will be able to balance his budget, and the general confidence in sterling. There was £300,000 in gold offered on the market and taken by the Continent at a price of 131 shillings 10 pence.

There was, however, no evidence of American buying.—Router.

CROWN LAND SALE.

PLOT AT SHAMSHUIPO SOLD AT $3 THE FOOT

At the offices of the Public Works Department yesterday afternoon, a plot of Crown land at Shamsuiipo, registered as New Kowloon Island Lot No. 2175, was put up for auction, the upset price being based at three dollars a square foot.

There was only one bidder, and he secured the lot at the upset price of $7,770.

The land, measuring 2,500 sq. ft. is formed of a still undeveloped area at the junction of Tung Chau and Kiu Kiang Streets.

By the conditions of purchase, the new owners, Messrs. Sam Kee, building contractors, are required at their own expense to form the site by cutting to such levels as the Director of Public Works may approve, and to hand back, free of cost, to the Government, as much of it as shall be required for the natural continuation of the roads intersecting at this point.

Messrs. Sam Kee intend to build a workshop on the site.

INDIA AND JAPAN IN AGREEMENT.

CONFIRMATION BY TOKYO AWAITED

New Delhi, Nov. 6.
The official delegations of the Indian and Japanese cotton interests met again to-day, Mr. Sawada, having recovered from his indisposition, attending the conference. It is understood that the outlines of an Indo-Japanese agreement have been settled, subject only to confirmation from Tokyo which is eagerly awaited.

It is understood that the cotton aspect of the agreement should be ready for ratification on Nov. 10, and the remainder of the subjects of discussion will be settled before Nov. 15.

It is expected that provision will be made to give effect to the agreement as from Nov. 10, in which event the Indian Government will bring before the Assembly shortly a bill making the implementation of the pact possible.

It seems that to-day's talks were concerned mainly with the objection of the Japanese cotton interests to the rigid classification of goods which Japan fears may prevent taking advantage of the full quota offered. The Japanese also wish a reduction of the quota in respect of Japanese purchases of Indian cotton.

Vital Discussions.

The Indian Government has explained the extent to which it can accommodate the Japanese view point and the Japanese side apparently has realised that the agreement reached must be based largely upon to-day's talks.

Thus the terms India offers have been communicated to Tokyo for formal authority for entering into an agreement with the Indian Government.

A tariff of 50 per cent. ad valorem on most cotton textiles and specific duties on the remainder, with Imperial preference, are the main points of interest to British cotton interests. Thus, Lancashire will have a 50 per cent. margin of preference if the plans work out as contemplated.—Router.

ITALY DISTURBED.

Abyssinian Land For Japanese Cotton.

Rome, Nov. 6.
Italian opinion is much disturbed by the intention of Abyssinia to concede to Japan 1,000 acres for cotton cultivation and probably further land for other enterprises. The Italians anticipate that this is probably the thin end of the wedge of a colonisation scheme, by which Abyssinia will become an outlet for Japanese surplus population.

Semi-official newspaper comment is to the effect that Abyssinia is disinclined to develop relations with Italy and adds that Italy may invoke the aid of Great Britain and France, under an agreement of 1906, which promised concerted action in safeguarding these nations' respective interests.—Router.

AMERICAN MINISTER.

TO PAY VISIT TO SOUTH CHINA

Peking, Nov. 6.
The United States Minister, Mr. Nelson Johnson, has departed for Shanghai by train. He will stay at Nanking and Shanghai for a few days, and will then board the United States flagship Houston at Shanghai as a guest of Admiral Upham, and proceed on a tour of South China, including Foochow, Amoy, Hongkong and Canton.

This is the first time that Mr. Johnson has visited South China since he became Minister in 1928.—Router.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Today's Contract Problem

WITH clubs trump, in the following hand, it looks as though South must lose a club and a spade. How should he play the hand to make a small slam?

North: ♠ A 4 3 ♠ A 6 2
East: ♠ Q 7 3 ♠ 9 6 5 4 3
South: ♠ Q 8 3 ♠ K
West: ♠ J 9 7 2 ♠ Q J 10
Solution in next issue. 13

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

Regardless of how scientific the game of bridge becomes, Lady Luck will always govern her share of the hands. There will always be the "good-breaking" hands and the "hard luck" hands. The preceding problem hand, shown here, is one of those perfect-breaking hands, and while the declarer, by making the right heart and spade play, can make six no trump, it should not be bid, of course.

The Bidding

The proper bidding is South pass, West pass. While North holds a five-card spade suit, his hand is strong enough to justify an original bid of one no trump. East passes. South bids two no trump, North can then bid three spades and South will go to three no trump.

The Play

If East elects to open a heart, the declarer is relieved of the the guess. With a diamond opening, declarer will win the trick and must lead a small spade to dummy's king.

When East's ten drops, declarer must try to determine whether

Constant Powdering Bad For Skin

Says
Specialist

Many women feel that they must be constantly dabbling on powder in order to prevent shiny noses or glowing faces. They never stop to realize what effect this may have upon their skin.

A new and clever idea now enables any woman to powder once in the morning and have it last all day. A teaspoonful of mouse powder added to a favorite face powder makes it softening and adherent that it stays on in spite of sun, wind or rain and even in the hottest bathroom.

In Foudre Tokalon, the mouse of cream is scientifically blended with the finest talc powder. Thus, Foudre Tokalon is the only genuine mouse of cream face powder. It acts as a splendid skin tonic, stimulating the tissues and never clogging the pores—such as constant powdering may do. Apply Foudre Tokalon in morning morning to your own face and watch results. 888A.

East's remaining spade is the jack or ace. Of course, if he plays

East for the ace and returns a small spade, finessing the eight spot, this will force East's ace. The club finesse is right and the declarer can spread the hand for six no trump.

Committal Proceedings Against Chinese

Committal proceedings against Li Lam, an unemployed, charged with the theft of a handbag from a married woman, Chai Ping, in the West Point district, were commenced before Mr. Hamilton in the Central Magistracy this morning.

The hearing was adjourned until to-morrow morning.

It was alleged by the prosecution that the complainant walked down Queen's Road West and turned into Chung Hing Street when the defendant came up from behind, snatched the bag and fled.

The alarm was raised and he was chased down a scavenging lane into Western Street where he passed a policeman into Des Voeux Road West. He ignored the Police officer who gave chase and caught the thief.

The woman later identified him,
but the bag was not recovered.

MR. W. E. PEERS MARRIED AT HOME

To Miss Christina Allison

The wedding of Mr. William Edgar Peers and Miss Christina
Allison was solemnized at All Saints' Parish Church, Leamington recently. The Rev. J. A. Murray officiated.

The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Peers, Priory House, Church Street, Leamington, and is employed in the Hongkong Electric Company. The bride, daughter of Mr. A. Allison, of Hongkong, was given away by Mr.
H. Peers, uncle of the bridegroom, and wore a dress of moire satin and old Brussels lace.

She was attended by three bridesmaids, Miss Evelyn and Miss Phyllis Peers (twin sisters of the bridegroom) and Miss Hilda Wright. They wore white chiffon dresses, with white lace mittens and white satin shoes and picture hats.

The bride's mother wore a dress of blue morocain with hat and shoes to match.

The bride's bouquet was of white roses and carnations with sprigs of white heather, while the bridesmaids carried sheaves of pink gladioli. The best man was Mr.
George Lewis.

The church was tastefully decorated with white flowers and palms. At the reception there were about 140 guests.

The honeymoon was spent on the South Coast, the bride's going-away dress being of white corded silk, trimmed with yellow, and a white velour hat.

The marriage is announced to take place shortly of Mr. William Humble
Wilson, electrical engineer, of Shing
Wai Water Scheme, and Miss Nora Mackintosh, of Glen-y-Mor, Banff, England.

OPIUM SMUGGLERS CAUGHT

Arrested on Arrival From Canton

Leung Pat, unemployed, appeared before Mr. Hamilton in the Central Police Court this morning, charged with the possession of 62 taels of raw opium and 50 taels of non-Government prepared opium. He was arrested in Connaught Road West having just arrived from Canton.

On the first charge, a fine of $4,000 or one year's hard labour was imposed, while on the second, a fine of $1,500 or three months was inflicted the sentences to run concurrently.

Arrested at the same place, Lam
Pat pleaded guilty to the possession of 105 taels of raw opium, and was fined $3,000 or nine months' hard labour.
